Bootlegging Up. Silver Down.
Two Great Birthdays.
We Postpone, France Not.
For Rail and Highways.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MR. MILL, investigating for Mr Curtis, finds that fifty million dollars are needed to finance the great rum fleet operating off the Atlantic coast. Fleets of fast rum runners to escape and outwit the Coast Guard, big ocean steamers, millions invested in whisky, and a wide margin to allow for seizures and losses, are necessary.

THE MAN, well dressed, of few words, able to look to the right and left in a quarter of a second as he offers supplies "right off the boat," is usually not a bootlegger on his own account. He is a high-pressure salesman, working for a syndicate on a commission basis and drawing account. Bootlegging carries a heavy payroll.

BOOTLEGGING HAS reached the fifty-million-dollar "big business" stage.

And simultaneously the business of producing and selling silver is dwindling away in a manner that threatens the world's prosperity. The silver in an English shilling today, with a face value of twenty-four cents, is worth actually three cents. Your silver dollar is worth intrinsically a fraction more than twelve cents.

TWO GREAT birthdays, biggest in American history, are in this month. Tomorrow will be the one hundred and twenty-second anniversary of Lincoln's birthday. It reminds you that wealth and elaborate education are not necessary to usefulness. A boy could carry all the books that Lincoln had opened when he was elected president.

The qualities born in his brain, inherited from his father and mother, and ancestors 1,000,000 years back, made him what he was.

IF HE HAD succeeded in his efforts to secure a modest position in the Interior Department, Lincoln might have gone through life unknown. But none the less he would have been Abraham Lincoln.

Thousands of men as great have lived and died "without fame" and many are alive now that will never be heard of. A combination of power, circumstances and opportunity are necessary in the making of a great man.

THE BIRTHDAY of Washington, in 10 days will remind the country that the richest man can be a true patriot, and put his country's welfare, and the liberties of his fellow citizens ahead of his own selfish interests.

WE DECIDE to postpone the building of airplanes, submarines, airplane carriers and cruisers with airplane platforms for fear of arguments resulting in a special session.

The French logical, determined, allowing nothing to interfere with national defense, proceed to build a series of armored cruisers of 23,000 tons each to offset the marvelously efficient German cruisers, called "miniature battleships."

AND FRANCE will continue building submarines She knows that airplanes and submarines represent in the highest degree, the power to punish other nations, and that the nation with power to punish is the one that will not be provoked or attacked.

If anybody attacked THIS nation, through the air it could only burst into tears. It isn't prepared to resent or punish anything.

IN BRITAIN a car called the "ro-rail" with two sets of wheels has been successfully tried on British railroad tracks and highways. On the tracks it rolls on regular steel wheels. Arrived at the end of its rail journey, rubber-tired wheels are lowered below the level of the steel car wheels, which are inside of the wheels with pneumatic rubber tires.

And the coach motor bus or truck is ready to leave the rails and finish its journey on the highway.

If our railroads used such vehicles, motor trucks and buses could not successfully compete with railroads between large cities as they do now.

And the value of the railroads' rights of way would be at least double.

THE STOCK markets woke up happy in New York and London yesterday. Heavy stock buying in the New York market indicated two things—first, that many believe a permanent advance has started; second, many are willing to "try, try again."

Whether this is the time to buy stocks that have dropped below 40, and will eventually go above 100, remains to be seen. There is no doubt that when the next boom does start it will be full of energy, and soon cause speculators to forget how recently they said "Never again."

THE INTERSTATE Commerce Commission moves in a mysterious way to regulate the railroads.

When Henry Ford was operating his railroad, since sold, he wanted to reduce freight rates. The commission wouldn't let him. Now the Louisville and Nashville Railroad asks permission to reduce passenger rates and the Interstate Commerce Commission says:

"No, you mustn't do that."

IN OUR QUEER country, you have the government on the one hand waving the decrepit old Sherman act forbidding combinations to reduce waste and produce profit.

On the other hand, you have the Interstate Commerce Commission forbidding a railroad to compete as it pleases and give the public cheaper service.

PINCHOT AX HITS QUIZ REBELS

Governor Fires Six; Dight Among Victims; Senate Starts Organizing Probe

By E. W. PRENDERGAST
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 11.—Retribution set in today as the Senate's public utility probe committee held its first organization meeting preparatory to its actual functioning, start of which was set for Monday at 2 p. m.

Gov. Pinchot's ax, sharpened by yesterday's skirmish, was swinging. Half a dozen heads flew off yesterday and hundreds of others, including some of the highest salaried officials, are expected to go within the week.

Most outstanding of those fired yesterday were John Dight, director of publications, and William Crozier, director of the rehabilitation department of the Bureau of Labor and Industry.

BACKED BY PAINTER

Dight was Senator Howard I. Painter's man, and both are from Butler. Painter was one of the four who, switching from the Pinchot side, lent aid to the overwhelming defeat of the Pinchot public utility probe plan, substituting the Earnest limited probe.

Crozier was said to be an appointee of Senator Herman Brandt, of Allegheny County, who aligned himself with the anti-Pinchot forces.

Among those within the shadow of the gubernatorial ax this week are many who held office through the influence of Senators William S. Rial, Greensburg, another of the four; Charles H. Clippinger,

We Start Upward

THE BUSINESS pendulum usually has swung for weeks, even months, in a new direction before the change is recognized. This experience probably will be duplicated this year.

James A. Farrell, president of the largest steel corporation in the world, declares emphatically that the turn came in this country last December.

There are increasingly abundant symptoms that the worst of the depression has passed and that recovery will shortly become sufficiently pronounced to be seen plainly by all.

We have now gone through all the processes essential to undoing inflation and establishing solid foundations for a fresh era of prosperity.

Among historic, familiar, dependable harbingers of sunshine in the business and financial world—and in employment—may be cited these:

Stock prices have gained an average of 15 points since mid-December.

Domestic bonds have advanced appreciably.

Brokers' loans have decreased more than six billions from their 1929 peak.

Money for speculative purposes is daily available at one per cent; in New York, merchants' paper is discountable at 2¾ per cent; bills endorsed by bankers can be placed at 1½ per cent; loans running up to 90 days are procurable at 1½ per cent—all phenomenally low terms, calculated to act as a potent business stimulant and as a powerful propellant of enterprise.

Underwriters, long timid, have resumed the issuing of new securities, with encouraging results. An addition of $600,000,000 to savings and $400,000,000 to thrift accounts during the last year, indicates that, despite widespread unemployment, our mountainous stock of savings has reached unprecedented heights.

THE NEW YEAR has already brought improvement in that essentially fundamental industry, iron and steel, always in the past regarded as among the most trustworthy of all economic yardsticks.

The year has already brought very substantial increases in the working forces of automobile manufacturers, who now feel distinctly hopeful that a broader demand is at hand.

Construction reports, although uneven, are at least a little more cheerful. A shrinkage of 35 per cent in the net operating income of our railroads is only one of many conclusive indications that the production and transportation of the necessaries and comforts of life have fallen far below the actual decrease in consumption and in wear and tear. Tire manufacturers have compiled authoritative statistics proving that during the last 15 months "America has been running on its spare tire." Spare tires are not the only pre-panic surpluses which have since been almost completely used up.

The latest returns from utility companies show that a decrease in the consumption of electric power has run its course and that an upward trend is setting in.

Consumption of coal as well as consumption of gasoline tell a similar tale.

The outburst of commercial failures in January, entirely expected, is interpreted as marking the culmination of business troubles which invariably cross the tail end of a period of severe depression.

NEW YORK BANKERS notoriously have been the most pessimistic of any class in America. It was not until the last week of the year that they became convinced that their panicky apprehensions were not warranted. Since then they have become distinctly less fearful; indeed, most of them now feel confident that the storm has spent itself and that gradual betterment is assured.

Finance, always extremely sensitive, has worked itself into a mild fright over recent events in Congress. If it becomes certain that no special session will be held, the controllers of the most powerful purse strings in the land should, logically, express their relief by dropping some of their timidity and giving the country what it has sadly lacked for 15 months, namely, some measure of intelligent, courageous leadership.

While admittedly recovery has not yet gone far, it is infinitely important and encouraging to have assurances that the country is at least now traveling in the right direction.

KLINE SCANS SUCCOP'S RECORDS

Complainant of Favoritism To Demand Council Hold Open Hearing on Charges

Mayor Kline's secret investigation of Director of Supplies Bertram L. Succop's office opened today behind the closed doors which have aroused a storm of protest.

For an hour the Mayor was closeted with Succop, Controller J. P. Kerr and Paul M. Kidd, of the bureau of governmental research, in Succop's office, presumably discussing the charges that Succop frequently awarded contracts for supplies to the highest bidder.

When the conference broke up the Mayor announced that this afternoon he would question Dr. J. S. Hammers, superintendent of the city hospital at Mayview, hospital dieticians and the hospital's warehouse manager in Succop's office.

BOUGHT FOR MAYVIEW

It is for the Mayview patients that Succop buys food from high bidders, according to John D. Houston of the James W. Houston Company, whose open letter to Council precipitated this investigation.

Kidd's presence at the morning conference lent the impression that the Bureau of Governmental Research, which is devoted to more efficient management and co-operates with the city government, might take a hand in the investigation. Kidd himself said that Dr. Kerr or the Mayor would explain his presence.

After the conference in Succop's office the Mayor explained he had gone there to familiarize himself with the bookkeeping and to determine how Succop awarded the contracts for city supplies. He added:

"If Succop's method of procedure is in a rut we'll try to get him out of that rut."

WANTS OPEN QUIZ

Meanwhile John D. Houston announced he would demand, rather than a secret hearing, an open councilmanic investigation of his charges.

Another check today on file in Controller Kerr's office revealed that Succop had awarded a contract for 600 feet of two-inch water hose to the Republic Rubber Company for $420 over the low bid of $288 of the Speck Marshall Company; a contract to the Eureka Fire Hose Company for 2½-inch hose at 75 cents per foot over the 69-cent bid of the Manhattan Rubber Company; a contract for 1-inch hose to the Eureka Company at 80 cents over the 70-cent bid of the Manhattan Company; a contract to the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company for 50 gross of tobacco at $500 over the $475 low bid of the Pennsylvania Tobacco Company; a contract to Marcus & Co. for red salmon for $2.85 per case over A. L. Brahm Company's bid of $1.80.

OFFICER, 'LOST' WIDOW TO WED

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Patrolman George Wandling, "Adonis" of the police force, said today he was engaged to marry Mrs. Imogene Stella, wealthy widow, whose disappearance last week he reported to his superiors yesterday.

Wandling said he believed Mrs. Stella had been kidnaped by racketeers who would hold her for a large ransom.

Wandling himself, he said, is named the chief beneficiary in her will, which "others" were seeking to change because he was "only a cop." The handsome patrolman wore a ring he said was worth $1,400 and a Christmas gift from Mrs. Stella. They had planned a trip to Europe in June and were to be married, he said. The ring was set with a pigeon-blood stone surrounded by diamonds.

Wandling has been married twice and divorced. One of his former wives was an opera singer, the other the daughter of a banker.

Wandling said the last he saw of Mrs. Stella was at her home last Tuesday.

Death Seen Near for Volstead

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 11.—(INS.)—Former Congressman Andrew J. Volstead, father of the dry law which bears his name, was reported near death today at his home here.

Amos W. W. Woodcock, national prohibition director, and M. L. Harney, Northwest prohibition administrator, called at the Volstead home. They were only permitted to see the former congressman, who now is legal advisor for the Northwest prohibition enforcement department, for a few minutes. Woodcock, on leaving the Volstead home, said:

"Mr. Volstead is very low. I would not have asked to see him if I had realized how serious his condition is."

Volstead underwent an emergency operation for appendicitis last Friday. He failed to rally and a weak heart has made the dry leader's case very critical.

TANK EXPLOSION DAMAGES PLANT

Exploding with a terrific roar that was heard for blocks, a large motor-driven compressed-air receiving tank blew up shortly before noon today in the Bayard plant of the Pittsburgh Transformer works of the Allis-Chalmers Company, at Preble avenue, North Side.

One hundred employes at another end of the building were perilled as heavy pieces of the heated metal shattered windows nearby.

Chunks of iron flew into Magnolia way. The steel framework and most of the windows at Preble avenue and Branchport street were blown out. Damage exceeded $5,000, according to D. G. McArn, works manager.

Pershing Refers To Penna. Troops

In today's installment Gen. memoirs, Gen. Pershing for the first times makes mention of Pennsylvania troops when he reveals that March 17, 1918, was the date on which he was informed that the 28th and 80th Divisions were ready to be shipped to France. At the same time were to go the 70th, the 77th, 78th and 82nd. By that date, he writes, it had been determined that these units were to train with the British. No information of this was known by the troops at the time or even when they actually sailed two months later.

In today's installmwent Gen. Pershing scores the theory of unpreparedness in time of peace, resulting in a disheartening delay in training in time of war.

STOCKS KEEP CLIMBING

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Irrepressible bullishness reigned in the stock exchange today, steadily increasing in intensity for the fourth successive trading session.

Although the market was unsettled by a flurry of profit-taking and bear selling in the first half hour, the bull movement was quickly resumed, and by midday the volume of trading had swelled to the largest proportions of the New Year. Profit-taking checked the advance in spots during the afternoon, as accounts were closed out in advance of the Lincoln's Birthday holiday tomorrow.

Steel mill operations were estimated at 50 per cent of rated capacity, an increase from 48 per cent a week ago, and at the best level since October.

Radio Problem--Is Been Bean, or Could It Be Bin?

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

And radio announcers are not sure whether to say, "How have you bean" or "How have you bin?" So they will also compromise by chanting "The beans are in the bin."

State Grants Dial Vote

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 11.—Secretary of the Commonwealth Richard J. Beamish today granted permission to the County Commissioners of Allegheny County to postpone granting a contract for voting machines until the so-called "dial" device is examined.

He granted the delay at the request of Edgar J. Kaufmann, who, in a wire to the secretary, asked aid in the postponement.

Secretary Beamish explained in his letter to Kaufmann that he has within his power the right to re-examine any machines, and that his power includes that of forcing the commissioners to execute the contract.

Beamish's letter said:

"The commissioners may postpone action until your devices shall have been placed before them."

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, apprised of the action of Secretary Beamish, stated he expected notification, if received, would come before the meeting of the commissioners late today. He said:

"I propose to make a motion, in that case, asking the county solicitor whether we may be forced by the state to delay action in the face of the law which provides a limitation of the time within which we are required to act regarding voting machines."

STUDENTS HELD IN RUM RAID

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Feb. 11.—(INS.)—Eighty-three college students of the University of Michigan today were under technical arrest awaiting arraignment on disorderly conduct charges in allegedly violating the prohibition law by stocking their fraternity houses with liquor for the coming Junior class dance, one of the social events of the year.

Police conducted wholesale raids of five of the fraternities early today and herded more than 100 men in to the local jail. Only 83 of them however, were ordered to appear for arraignment and placed under technical arrest.

According to authorities, quantities of Canadian liquor were found in a search of the fraternity houses from roof to basement, and nearly all of the occupants were arrested.

Sgt. Norman Cook, who led the raids, declared that the youths were fortunate that police had apparently decided to prosecute them on disorderly conduct charges and not charges of violation of the prohibition law.

GRAFT CHARGES BRING JAIL IN LUZERNE

Five Former Officials Are Found Guilty, With Year's Battle Still Being Fought

WILKES-BARRE, Feb. 11.—With five former county officials already convicted and serving time in various penal institutions, Luzerne County is today battling to send favored contractors to prison in connection with a system of graft and irregularity in awards for road and other work. The battle had been waged for a year and the end is not in sight.

The award of contracts without competitive bids, juggling of contracts and the re-advertisement for bids when favored bidders were not successful, was alleged by the Taxpayers' Association, which brought the suits.

COMMISSIONERS JAILED

Three county commissioners, David M. Rosser, Leslie J. Harrison, and Patrick J. Conway, are serving a year in the county jail and are also under sentence of one year to the Eastern Penitentiary when those sentences expire. Former County Controller Harry T. Butts is serving a year in the penitentiary, and former County Engineer Merl Breese is in jail under sentence. An offer to permit resignation, with restitution, it was testified, was refused. Ten or more contractors are involved.

In the trials it was brought out that contracts were awarded without advertising for bids; that work was awarded on a cost-plus basis when competitive bidding would have saved the county money; that less material was furnished than the county paid for, and that officials shared in the overcharge.

It was charged that in other instances a road contract involving between $250,000 and $300,000 was merely an oral agreement, with no competitive bidding. In this case an effort was made to return $6,000 as an overcharge, but the refund was refused.

BIDS SWITCHED

In the case of the Ashley boulevard improvement, it was brought out that the Banks Construction Company was the low bidder. There was a hitch and bids were re-advertised. On the second bid, a contractor who had been high bidder on the first advertisement became low bidder. It was also charged that the county was overcharged for rental of road machinery.

In addition to the criminal charges brought, it is said that the Taxpayers' Association will ask that the guilty officials be surcharged with the various amounts which it is claimed the county has lost through the manipulation of contracts.

'One Man Mint' Bankrupt, Owes Friends $400,000

BELVIDERE, Ill., Feb. 11.—(INS.)—Albert W. Benham, the "one-man mint," who was hailed as an investment wizard by the entire countryside until last night, announced himself as a bankrupt today.

Benham, who paid his clients from 10 to 50 per cent interest on money entrusted to him to invest, sent a 600-word statement to a Rockford newspaper announcing the demise of the Benham financial bubble last night.

His creditors in Belvidere alone number 800, and his liabilities were estimated at $400,000 by State's Attorney Alexander Strom, who is investigating Benham's affairs.

In his statement "Fifty Per Cent Al," as he is known by fellow townsmen, attributed the crash of his financial venture to the plottings of "enemies who had conspired to ruin him."

Benham said he fears for his life and has employed bodyguards of late to safeguard himself from enemies.

Mystery still cloaks the method Benham employed in his investment business. Investigation failed to disclose the details of the scheme which launched this section of the state into fancied affluence for more than a year.

CANNON FACES NYE QUIZ

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—An effort by Bishop James Cannon, Jr., to block at the outset a new investigation of his 1928 political activities, was anticipated today as the Nye campaign funds committee called the first witnesses in the case of the Southern Methodist churchman.

The bishop, who succeeded in halting a similar investigation last year by the Senate's lobby committee, sent word to the Nye group he would be on hand today. He was expected to challenge the group's authority. It is functioning in his case under a resolution by Senator Glass (Dem.), of Virginia, recently passed by the Senate and upon complaints of Representative Tinkham (Rep.), of Massachusetts, who repeatedly has accused Bishop Cannon of violation of the federal corrupt practices act.

The topic of inquiry was the expenditure of funds in Virginia in the campaign against the Democratic presidential nominee, Alfred E. Smith.

DAISY TO FIGHT JAIL TERM

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 11.—(INS.)—Sentenced to 18 months in county jail for the theft of $825 from Clara Bow, her former employer, Daisy De Voe today pinned her hopes on an appeal for a new trial.

From her cell the blonde widow and former companion of the screen's "It" girl said:

"I had a premonition that this would happen. I want my name cleared, and I am going to keep on fighting until it is."

An appeal from the ruling denying her motion for a new trial will be pressed by Miss De Voe, Attorney William Beirne said.

Judge William C. Doran passed sentence on Miss De Voe, sending her to jail for 18 months as part of a five-year probationary term.

Because of the jail sentence the red-crowned Clara let it be known she was "terribly sorry."

RASKOB SEEKS PARTY TEST

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—A national Democratic rally—the first since the memorable campaign of 1928—has been called to meet in Washington March 5, the day after Congress adjourns, to consider party problems and lay plans for 1932.

The call for the meeting, which is to include members of the national committee and the party leaders in and out of Congress, was issued by Chairman John J. Raskob, for whom the rabid southern drys have been gunning for a long time. He has decided to give his critics a chance to shoot at him in the open.

The group has charged that Chairman Raskob and his friends, among whom they number Alfred E. Smith, are "trying to sell the party soul to the wets" in 1932, while another group is protesting the national chairman because of his large loans to the party. Their persistent criticism has nettled the Raskob leadership. Having made a careful canvass of the situation, it was decided, therefore, to have a national meeting and a showdown.

3,000 Miners Buried By Blast in China

PEIPING, China, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Chinese reports from Manchuria here today said that 3,000 miners were entombed Sunday noon in the Fushun mines by an underground explosion. A considerable loss of life was feared.

Rescue work was started immediately, but only a few persons could be taken from the shaft. Relatives of the entombed men gathered at the mine head in their grief, making a pitiful scene.

RELIEF BILL AND BONUS SPEEDED

Congress Sets Night Sessions To Hasten Legislation; Insurgents Rap Aid Fund

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON.
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Enactment of the compromise $20,000,000 drought relief measure, a bill to cash the soldiers' bonus and $4,500,000,000 in appropriation bills constituted the administration's legislative program for the remainder of the "lame duck" session, it was announced today.

Night sessions were ordered to speed action.

The drought relief measure, already accepted by Democratic leaders, has struck a snag in the Senate, where it met opposition from insurgents in both parties. It was condemned for abandoning urban refugees of the unemployment wave, and those rural inhabitants who lack the necessary security for government loans. In the end, it will be approved by Congress, but not before the insurgents make it an issue for the next campaign.

STUDIES VET BILLS

After rejecting the proposal for cash payment of the $3,500,000,000 soldiers' compensation certificates, the House Ways and Means committee today decided to consider two modified plans to aid needy veterans.

The plans are: Payment of 25 per cent of the face value of adjusted service certificates, or increase the loan value to 50 per cent. The plan which will be adopted, it was indicated, is the second, that of Representative Bacharach (Rep.), of New Jersey, to raise the interest rate to 50 per cent and reduce the interest rate.

The Norris resolution to abolish "lame duck" sessions of Congress, such as the present session, was given a preferred status on the house calendar by the Rules Committee today, thus assuring a vote at this session.

Among other measures given preferred status was the Wickersham Commission bill permitting service of notice by publication in "padlocking" cases.

LEAGUE COURT DELAY

Renewing its opposition to immediate action on the League Court protocol, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today voted down a motion by Senator Walsh (Dem.), of Montana, to reconsider its earlier decision to postpone consideration until next December. The vote was 10 against and eight for the motion.

Without a dissenting voice, the Senate passed the 44-hour-work week bill for postal employes, which now goes to the White House.

Half-Billion Deficit Forecast by Mills

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(INS.)—A deficit of not less than $500,000,000 faces the government at the end of the present fiscal year, June 30, Under-Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills declared today in a talk before the Bond Club.

Mills advised against either cashing or increasing the loan value on veterans' adjusted service certificates.

Countryman Shoots Czecho-Slav Envoy

VIENNA, Feb. 11.—(INS.)—Counselor Jaroslav Zajcaek, of the Czecho-Slovakian legation, was seriously wounded today when Borislav Zetka, his 68-year-old countryman, fired three shots at him.

Zetka was arrested. Legation officers believe the shooting to be an act of revenge, while police are of the opinion that it is the outgrowth of an espionage affair.

Coolidge Sees Favorable Developments in Europe

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Feb. 11.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Recent news from Europe is of an encouraging nature. After being suspended for several years the freedom of the press and other constitutional rights have now been restored in Spain and general parliamentary elections have been ordered. Instead of trial by battle and reform by revolution the peaceful methods of representative government are being adopted.

Calvin Coolidge

The well wishers of the German people also have seen their faith justified by the support which Chancellor Bruening is receiving in the Reichstag. It is silencing Germany's critics and strengthening the hands of her friends. Opposition is less in France to extending German credits and continuing a friendly policy. These developments increase the possibility of a naval agreement between France and Italy.

The people of the world have a reserve moral power which cannot be ignored in estimating the action they will take in emergencies. Before we conclude that the orderly processes of governments are to be entirely broken down, that the business of the world is prostrated beyond recovery, it is necessary to consider this recuperative power of the people themselves. This great constructive force has no known limits. Silently and almost imperceptibly it moves, forever on the side of right.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

REMARKABLE PICTURES TAKEN BY A SUN-TELEGRAPH CAMERAMAN BEFORE DAYLIGHT TODAY AS MORE THAN 175 CITY FIREMEN FOUGHT FLAMES AT FIFTH AVENUE AND STEVENSON STREET IN ANSWERING GENERAL ALARM

8 HURT AS FIRE RUINS BUILDING

Eight firemen were injured, one seriously, when flames swept through a six-story building at 1342 and 1344 Fifth avenue, shortly before 3 a. m. today.

More than 175 firemen from 22 companies summoned on five alarms fought several hours before the blaze was brought under control with a loss estimated at more than $75,000.

The first floor of 1342 Fifth avenue was occupied by the Specialty Furniture Company. The remainder of the building, and the entire six floors at 1344 housed the Reliable Trunk and Bag Company.

FIREMEN IN HOSPITAL

The injured firemen were taken to Mercy Hospital. They were:

George Bright, 56, of 42 Beltzhoover avenue, captain of Engine Company No. 4; concussion of brain and exposure; condition serious.

Harry C. Boyce, 45, of 930 Berkshire avenue, truck No. 12; right shoulder fractured.

Edwin Hefferman, 26, of 925 Viceroy street, Engine No. 2; right hand cut.

ICE HAMPERS FIGHT

The building, which stands at Fifth avenue and Stevenson street, has a frontage on the avenue of 60 feet and extends 125 feet to Watson street.

Firemen and equipment were quickly covered with a heavy coating of ice, which caused suffering among the men and made handling of equipment difficult.

Mrs. Margaret LaRose and her son, Paul, living on the second floor of 1338, and Spiro Cominos, his wife and two sons, Peter and John, on the second floor of 1340 Fifth avenue, were ordered from their homes.

S. L. Weiner, of 2338 Eldridge street, president of the trunk company, estimated the loss to stock at $40,000.

KELLY MARRIES MISS MACKAYE

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(INS.)—Creation of the leading role in a new play, opening here tonight, will mark the honeymoon of Paul Kelly, who last night was married to Dorothy Mackaye.

Kelly, who was at dress rehearsal of the play last night, declined to see reporters, and no details concerning the wedding were made known other than it took place in the apartment of a friend.

Miss Mackaye, an actress, was the widow of Ray Raymond, an actor for whose death both Miss Mackaye and Kelly served prison sentenced. Kelly was convicted of manslaughter in the death of Raymond, who died in 1927 from injuries received in a fist fight with Kelly in Hollywood. Kelly served two years and Miss Mackaye 10 months. She was found guilty of concealing facts in connection with Raymond's death.

U. S. Population Seen Stable at 175 Millions

CHICAGO, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—A prediction that the population of the United States will become stable at about 175,000,000 by 1950 was made by Dr. William F. Ogburn, president of the American Statistical Association, speaking before a group of fellow statisticians.

Dr. Ogburn, who is one of six leaders in social science commissioned by President Hoover to prepare a report on the trend of American civilization, said the stabilization would be brought about by the changing family, women in business and industry, the altering relationships between rural and urban communities and other factors.

'NUMBERS' POOL CLAIMS CLASH

"Numbers" racketeers in Pittsburgh were faced this morning with conflicting demands for payment from oil men who played on their New York Stock Exchange lottery yesterday. For the second consecutive day, private computations of the exchange total differed. Again the pool operators found themselves puzzled as to whom to pay.

In some cases, claims were paid on one number and in some on the other, but in none was payment made on both by any pool. Meanwhile receipts went down.

Coincidentally, play on the new totals of the 8 a. m. and 12-hour low temperature bulletins of the U. S. Weather Bureau went up, while more pools turned to it as their last resort. Two large books continued to play the dice daily, while booking on a weekly pool based on the weekly report of the New York Clearing House.

MOTHER FORCED FROM HOME

When Mrs. Sarah Stirk, 29, mother of three, returned to her home, 1111 Mary Ann street, last night, after a day's labor in a cleaning shop, she found the windows and doors had been removed and the water turned off.

She said her landlord and neighbor, Rudy Norakoreic, of 1109 Mary Ann street, made the house untenable for her failure to pay four months' back rent, amounting to $56.

Mrs. Lottie Hassik, who lives on the second floor, made room in her home for the mother and two of her children, Lorraine, 9, and Jack, 7.

The young mother, who says her husband has deserted her, said she has made an effort to pay her rent, but that the landlord ignored her plea for more time.

The case was reported by Patrolman Louis McAfee, an investigator for the Fraternal Order of Police. Patrolman McAfee said he had given several baskets of food and a ton of coal to Mrs. Stark.

Edison Cuts Labor To 12 Hours at 84

FORT MYERS, Fla., Feb. 11.—(INS.)—Thomas A. Edison, world-famous inventor, whose eighty-fourth birthday was celebrated here today by the formal dedication of a bridge spanning the Caloosahatchie River, has not been feeling any too well of late.

An indefatigable worker, Mr Edison has been forced to cut his working hours to 10 and 12 hours a day. A year ago he devoted fully 14 hours a day to work. Time was when he worked 16 hours a day, and even longer.

Firemen Quell Row Over Vote For Beauty

GUADALAJARA, Mex., Feb. 11.—(AP.)—The fire department was called out last night to quell a free-for-all fight in the Degollado Theater, where election of a beauty queen was taking place.

Partisans of several candidates came to blows and the theater was in an uproar when the firemen arrived. Streams of water played through the doors quenched the ardor of the fighters.

Later the victorious candidate, Senorita Stela Corona, drew cheers from the entire drenched audience with a speech from the stage.

WAR VET HIKES TO U. S. COURT

A war veteran who served in France hitch-hiked 150 miles from Bradford, Pa., to Pittsburgh today to plead guilty in Federal Court to altering a veteran's adjustment certificate so that he might borrow $150 on it.

He was Fred M. Price, 37. He said he didn't know a war veteran could get free hospitalization so he borrowed $100 in 1927 and $50 in 1929 to pay doctor's bills.

Since he returned from France, Price said he has been sick. And he admitted that once before he was in trouble. Sick and desperate, he said he hit a man so that he would go to jail, where he would get medical treatment.

Judge F. P. Schoonmaker put Price on probation for two years. Medical attention will be given him.

U. S. Subs Complete 7,300-Mile Cruise

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Twenty submarines have successfully completed a 7,300-mile sea voyage from Hawaii to Atlantic ports.

The trip, requiring two months, won commanding officers the praise of Rear Admiral John Halligan, acting chief of naval operations, expressed in a letter.

The fleet left Pearl Habor December 13, crossed to San Diego, turned down the Pacific to and through the Panama Canal and followed the Atlantic seaboard to the Delaware breakwater.

WESTINGHOUSE ON 5-DAY WEEK

Eighteen thousand employes of Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company will work on a five-day week basis beginning March 1.

A wage reduction of 10 per cent for salaried employes has been announced to match the reduction in earnings that will be received by the workers on an hourly basis as a result of being employed one-half day less each week. The plant formerly operated on a five-and-one-half-day week basis.

The following announcement of the plan was made by President F. A. Merrick:

"The plan to be followed for the immediate future is to shorten the working week to the extent represented by the work normally required on Saturday throughout the company. As this reduction of service represents approximately 10 per cent, that amount of reduction will apply to all salaried employes. Similar arrangements have already been put into effect as to employes on an hourly basis.

"This arrangement is solely an emergency measure to spread the work through this period of severe business depression and that normal arrangements will be reinstated with the advent of normal times."

The proposed amendment to the state constitution, permitting special assessments against real estate for subway construction work here, has been laid over until next week by the Finance Committee of City Council.

Coming from the office of the City Transit Commission, the resolution provided for its introduction into the present Legislature session, and if approved there, for its submission to the voters at the next general election.

The new proposal is an improvement over the one defeated at the polls in 1928, according to the Transit Commission. Mayor Charles H. Kline will see to its introduction to both houses of the Legislature within the next few weeks, he intimated.

The letter was signed by John F. Casey, G. G. Coolidge, A. E. Braun, Joseph Dilworth, J. C. Chaplin, W. U. Follansbee, F. A. Leovy, E. T. Weir, Lloyd W. Smith, J. C. Trees, A. C. Robinson, E. W. Mudge, A. K. Oliver and H. B. Rust.

WALSH CURBED ON AUTO HIRE

In the future if, Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh wants Council to pay taxi hire for detectives on special duty, he will have to inform the body before he hires the cars, and not afterward when he presents the bill.

Councilman Robert Alderdice made a motion to that effect yesterday when the Committee on Finance recommended payment of a bill of $1,631.40 for Detective Bureau auto hire to Andrew Garavini, 537 William Penn way.

The cars were used by detectives on 24-hour special duty for out-of-town trips late in December and last January following a series of murders and bank robberies, Walsh said in his report to Council.

"An honest investigation will bring out the reasons for the Public Service Commission's protection of the exclusive franchises in Pittsburgh a corporated [illegible] the cab companies—the Yellow, the Green and the [illegible] companies. That organization owns the only taxicab operating in Pittsburgh.
"Other companies have tried to procure certificates from the Public Service Commission and have failed. Pittsburgh has apparently been turned over to the tender mercies of the one big concern. The same thing is true in Philadelphia, where both the [illegible] companies are owned by Mitten Management. Mitten Management controls the transit lines in Philadelphia and operates them. When recently the Ford group sought permission to operate taxicabs in the Quaker City the Public Service Commission refused the privilege in no uncertain terms.

A Matter of "Cold" Reasoning

EVERY one will admit that it is wise to prevent colds. Yet you seldom take precautions to keep from catching cold in germ-infested places. When you do catch cold, you often let it run its course.

There is a delightful inhalant that will take care of preventing colds and of relieving them, too, without fuss, or muss, or trouble. It is Vapex—the war-time discovery. Put a drop of it on your handkerchief—breathe the vapor—*and you breathe your cold away. Use it at night at each end of your pillow. Use it in crowded places to avoid infection.

Vapex is the inhalant approved by Good Housekeeping. Millions of bottles are sold yearly. It has never been successfully imitated. A single application of Vapex costs only 2c. For the $1 bottle contains fifty applications. Ask your druggist for VAPEX—the original inhalant discovered during the war.

HOWARD MARSH, STAR OF 'STUDENT PRINCE,' SINGS ON RADIO TONIGHT

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL A. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

Wednesday, Feb. 11

"Only Mary Pickford among the screen stars has been more frequently heard from KDKA than Howard Marsh," the announcer gives us during the introduction to the latter's broadcast of "Student Prince" songs from WCAE at 8 o'clock tonight. Marsh is the star of the Nixon-Nirdlinger production of "The Student Prince" which is now playing at the Nixon theater. Marsh will sing, along with the Nixon Serenaders, "Serenade" and "Blossom Time" and other numbers from the operetta. Important as Marsh's radio work has been, he has had much experience on the stage, having appeared in "Pleasure Bound" and other musical comedies. KDKA also has leaves the air at 9:45 Mary Margaret McBride with only a few minutes to Beat in Walter Winchell.

The LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Feb. 11. Picking out the words over which radio announcers stumble, flounder and sometimes sprawl miserably is the task that now faces Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly. It will be a job as difficult as it is endless. Gentlemen of the studios, quiet, and plenty of light and cushions for Vizetelly!

Vizetelly (pronounced Vizetelly) has been making dictionaries for the last 40 years, has a vocabulary of 455,000 words, is a radio speaker himself over Coh-lum-beeyah and has managed to compile a list of 25,000 words which are often mispronounced. Announcers are to have the fruits of his knowledge—are to have it personally and, as Woodrow Wilson used to say, "without stint."

* * *

No matter what the occasion may be, a good speaker, according to Vizetelly, is characterized by his pronunciation of words, whether he be President or pugilist, radio announcer or waiter. A "correspondent" does not become a "co-respondent" to him just because he has been assigned to describe some special event, and because it is mentioned on the air, "lab-or-at-ory" does not become a "labbratry." And he goes on, and will the class please pay attention.

* * *

"Ideal has the initial 'i' long, and 'iddeal' is not an ideal pronunciation.

"It is hard to com'template such an awful howler as contem'plate.

"'Aviator' has the first 'a' in 'rate,' and is not avviator.'

"Geno'a would not be recognized by the people who live in Gen'oa.

"You should't be inveigled into saying 'invaygled,' because it's really 'invegled.'

"A def-icit is not reduced by being pronounced defic'it.

"However, dec'adent the period, a dec'ade is not 'decayed.

"Never make a 'sacrifiss' of the word 'sacrifice.'

"Never entrust your delicate little toes to a 'kirropodist' or a 'tshyroppodist'—insist on a real 'kyroppodist' (but not if he spells it that way). There!"

There is the case of Iowa. Vizetelly favors "Ioway." He will remind you that in the middle of the last century the territory was inhabited by Indians, who, according to the covered wagon travelers, called it "Ioauway." It was often spelled Ioway. Only recently has it lost the "y" and become Iowa—only in fact since it became a state and was settled by people from other parts. And the legislature of Arkansas says there's no such place; it's Ark'nsaw.

* * *

What are some of the correct pronunciations that Vizetelly will drill into the heads of Columbia's announcers?

He will make them understand that "prelude" is "prellyade," not "praylood," that "Pall Mall," believe it or not, my chappies, is "Pal Mal," not "Paul Maul" or "Pell Mell," that "Covent Garden" is derived from "convent" and the "o" is as in "hot," that "tomato" is "to-mah-to" instead of "To-may-to." And he believes, thumbing a nose at Oxford, that it should be "been" and not "bean."

* * *

There is a vast and fruitly field awaiting them. It might embrace the entire panorama of industrial America, of her rise to a world power, of the emergence in the national landscape of big business, of artistic consciousness of sophistication. And it could be interpreted against a background of music drawn from the times.

* * *

Indians from various southwestern reservations crowded into Oklahoma trading posts the other night to hear not only Gilbert E. Gable talk about them but to cop an ear to the tribal hymns of Ralph Allen, full-blooded Pawnee. Wonder what they think of radio and what they say about it, though the program the other night could not be called a fair test. To get their real opinions and some good old "ughs," the broadcasters would have to give them an hour made up of "You're Driving Me Crazy" and "The Peanut Vender," a harmony duo, a talk on the tariff, a soloratura soprano, a string trio and a brass band playing the "William Tell Overture."

RELIEF FOR STOMACH ILLS

And other health-destroying ailments that have kept thousands of sufferers in misery and despair now seen in modern discovery BLOOD CELL PROTEIN SERUMS. How little we think the stomach controls High Blood Pressure and most all supposedly incurable diseases! Every organ in the body receives its allowance and maintenance from the stomach. Why do we impose on it? Nobody cares much—because it has to take what you give it and say nothing until some future date. You get a message from the kidneys—Bright's Disease, Hardening of the Arteries; a message from the Heart—Myocarditis, with what you call Rheumatism produced by toxins in the blood stream; Stiff Joints and painful Muscles. The Liver always trying to do what the Stomach fails to accomplish. Give up the fight and the patient drifts into Anemia. The time has come to stop drugging and abusing this wonderful organ that can digest all but itself. Don't you believe it is time to give some special thought to these facts and eliminate this stomach drugging, which you know is wrong, neglecting the only sure and effective avenue of medication — the blood stream? BLOOD CELL PROTEIN SERUMS are used universally in the treatment of these supposedly incurable diseases (35,000 given in Pittsburgh past 7 years) and can be had only at the

MANY EXTRAS GIVEN JOBS IN 'EAST LYNNE'

The filming of "East Lynne" made a big dent in the unemployment statistics of the extra players of Hollywood. Extras numbering 3,718 were employed at various times by Director Frank Lloyd to appear in support of the all-star cast, which includes Ann Harding, Clive Brook, Conrad Nagel, Cecilia Loftus, O. P. Heggie, David Torrence and Beryl Mercer.

The wedding scene of Lady Isabel and Carlyle required the services of 567 beautiful women and handsome men; a hunting ball sequence gave employment to about the same number of dress type extras; a Viennese scene required 472; Parisian scenes 1,130; Franco-Prussian War scenes needed 1,000 military types, 500 men and women to act as pedestrians and 100 children; the scenes of the bombardment of Paris required about 1,000 extras.

Penn. Boy is Brightest

FROM three to twelve. That's the period which is most important to your child's development. And that's the time many are retarded mentally and physically by constipation.

Watch your child, mother! At the first sign of bad breath, coated tongue, headache, biliousness, lack of energy or appetite, give a little California Fig Syrup.

This pure vegetable product cleanses, regulates a child's bowels without discomfort. No danger of forming the laxative habit when California Fig Syrup is used. For it tones and strengthens weak bowels. In colds or children's diseases, employ its gentle aid to keep the system from becoming clogged with germs or waste.

Mothers everywhere are eager to tell of the benefits secured for their children. Mrs. M. Saul, 5005 Grandpark St., Philadelphia, says: "I have used California Fig Syrup with Mathew for four years in cases of upsets, bad breath, coated tongue or constipation. It keeps him the brightest, happiest five-year-old I know!"

Look for the name California when buying. That is on every carton of the genuine, for your protection.

ED WYNN: NEW STOCK COMEDY COMING

Seats for Ed Wynn, "the perfect fool," in the Ziegfeld musical production of "Simple Simon," will go on sale tomorrow morning at the Alvin box office. The attraction comes to Pittsburgh next week from long and successful engagements in New York, Philadelphia and Chicago. Wynn will be supported by 100 entertainers, headed by Harriet Hoctor. Matinees will be given on Wednesday and Saturday.

The play announced for next week in the Pitt is "It's a Wise Child," a comedy which played the Nixon Theater earlier this season. Written by Lawrence E. Johnson and produced by David Belasco, "It's a Wise Child" is a sophisticated comedy growing out of the endeavors of a modern wayward woman to rid herself of an elderly suitor.

Otis Skinner is appearing on the Nixon stage this week in the French play, "Marius." He portrays the proprietor of a little bar on the waterfront of Marseilles. A matinee will be given today.

Kentucky Girl

Eleanor Boardman, as heroine in "The Great Meadow," film coming Friday to the Aldine, meets with love and adventure in the Kentucky of pioneer days.

LIONEL BARRYMORE BUSY AS DIRECTOR

Lionel Barrymore, for years one of the most important actors appearing on the English-speaking stage and later equally as important and in silent pictures, has laid aside his makeup box and picked up a megaphone.

The advent of talking pictures gave him the opportunity he had sought for years to become a director. His long training on the legitimate stage, his perfect diction and his familiarity with motion picture technique gave him a firm foundation for the new work.

His first directorial assignment was a sequence in "The Hollywood Revue," in which he also played a bit. Following that, he directed Ruth Chatterton in the successful talkie version of "Madame X," and later that picture he was definitely cast in the role of director [illegible].

Columbia Pictures secured his [illegible] for "Ten Cents a Dance," with Barbara Stanwyck [illegible], which is soon to be released. The story is an original by Jo Swerling. Featured in the cast with Miss Stanwyck are Ricardo Cortez, Monroe Owsley, Sally Blane and Phyllis Crane.

HOWLING COYOTE RUINS FILM SCENE

A howling coyote was responsible for a sound motion picture scene being spoiled for "Fighting Caravans" on location near Sonora, Cal.

The coyote call might have been an unexpected scund of value for this early Western story featuring Gary Cooper, Ernest Torrence, Lily Damita and Tully Marshall. But when the animal yelled nearly half of the 200 mules hitched to wagons began to bray.

Popular

Sharon Lynn is loved by two fellows in "Men on Call," a romance of the Coast Guard, which comes to the Enright screen Friday and to the Davis Saturday.

'Unfaithful' Is New Chatterton Picture

"Unfaithful" is to be the release title of Ruth Chatterton's current starring picture, an original by John Van Druten, author of "Young Woodley," "After All" and "Return of the Soldier." The story is a dramatic tale of an American girl who finds her husband's spotless reputation is false and is unable through complications to free herself. John Cromwell will direct. In the cast are Juliette Compton, John Loder, Paul Cavanagh, Donald Cook, Emily Fitzgerald and others.

Cecilia Loftus Gets Third Movie Part

Cecilia Loftus has been assigned to her third picture after having been in Hollywood only a little more than two months. It is "Merely Mary Ann," which will co-star Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell.

So you come back to us a trifle older,
But still the dear enchanter that we knew.
What need have you for words? A lifted shoulder—
A quirk of mouth—and we are silent, too;
Are we not all but shabby little strangers
With comic walk and drab, ill-fitting clothes,
Who blunder thru the years with all their dangers,
So quick to bruise—so keen to strut and pose?

Yes, we are you, and in that role I pray all
May learn the secret of your artistry;
That life consists of friendships and betrayal,
A laugh, a song and muted poignancy;
Thank you for coming back to show your brothers
That there is you—a gap—and then the others!

—Don Wahn.

Merciless Truth

Mickey Neilan, the movie director, who has been in the limelight over this and that, is in town. The first show he went to see was "Once in a Lifetime," the hilarious travesty on Hollywood life and manners.

Everybody in the audience roared, screamed and shrieked at the devastating flippancies aimed at the movie magnates for their illiterarcy and other irritating faults. All laughed, except Neilan.

"Why don't you laugh?" asked Jimmy Quirk.

"How can I laugh," was the mournful answer, "at something I've been crying about for 15 years?"

News Item

The depression has finally been felt on Park avenue, where, it is said, the men on the corners are selling baked apples with cream.

Flipcrack

Mal St. Clair, one of the better of the veteran movie directors, was in a mood the other sunup. He cornered a night life commentator and said:

"I can give you a story without a point to it."

"Say!" interrupted Miss Gahnun, "you should be back making pictures!"

Blunder

Tallulah Bankhead, whose success in England won her a Paramount movie contract, has started her temperamental outbursts over at the Long Island studios, already. Tallulah lost her noodle the other morning and raved about something that got on her nerves.

A man happened to cross the set.

"For Gossakes," she screamed, "get that man off this set at once, do you hear?"

The man was merely Adolph Zukor.

Quiteso, Quiteso

The recent grapefruit-throwing at Vallee in Boston has served to fill the newspaper columns with this gag or that one, but no one, it appears, paused to figure out the reason for the disturbance to Rudy.

Norman L. Klages and Paul Schweinberg, both of Pittsburgh, however, have solved the insult to America's Sonny Boy. Rudy Announced:

"Our next song will be: 'Give Me Something to Remember You By.'"

The Pittsburghers observe that a Yale student should have known better than to end a sentence with a preposition—in Boston!

Foiled

Among other tales being swapped across the nocturnal tables is the one about the origin of Walter Donaldson's song smash, "You're Driving Me Crazy!" They would have you believe that the songwriter had been tormented by a movie magnate boss in Hollywood last year, who spurned this song or that one until Walter's fuzz lifted high on his cheeks.

In a fit of temper Donaldson yelled:

"All right, then. Maybe you don't like my songs. But you'll hate one I'm going to write, believe me! It'll be called 'You're Driving Me Crazy!' and I hope it is such a hit that you'll be haunted by it wherever you go!"

Then Walter wrote "You're Driving Me Crazy," which, as you probably know, is one of the walloping successes. But the movie magnate who practically inspired it is in love with the song, because it is his newest flame's favorite ditty, and when she is i nthe mood she strokes

Bravo!

Leave it to Mr. Chaplin to cater to the crowd instead of to the elegants. They wanted Cholly to take his picture, "City Lights," and show it to William Lyon Phelps and his class at Yale, accompanied by a talk from Chaplin. This, it appears, was to stamp the actor as a Tunney, an intelligent giant, or something.

Cholly indignantly refused. Instead, he is taking the very amusing and touching classic to Ossining on Thursday to show it to the convicts in Sing Sing. Because, he says, it might divert "those lads."

And have you heard of the three-year-old agitation in England for knighthood for both Chaplin and Donald Colman?

Incidentally

Hannen Swaffer, in a piece tagged "Bluff, Boost and Bunkum," rips the mask from this and that celebrated person. Swaffer reveals how high-voltage publicity men begin exaggeration that seldom die. He tells, too, how Chaplin dismisses his press agent's white fibs. One of his junior exploiters, one day, made a statement that Chaplin was a Jew. Then the chief bass-drum banger rushed to Chaplin in dismay.

"Will you give me your denial for the papers?" he asked.

"Why should I deny it?" replied Cholly. "There are lots of Jews in America. It may please them."

Add Similes

Suggested for Frank J. Wilstach's Dictionary of Similes: Charles G. Shaw's: As ignorant as a raided night club owner . . . As full of aliases as a hotel register . . . As second-rate as an average first night . . . As hopeful as a blind date, and, as "down-trodden" as West Fifty-second street.

Poise Will Be Poise

An English touring company lost their leading man and sent to London for a new one. At 8:25 on the night he was to arrive, he hadn't appeared. The manager and the company were standing around waiting for the curtain, which went up at 8:30. The clock clicked 8:26—8:27—and finally at 8:28 a very tall, blase individual sauntered down the alley, and announced himself as the new leading man.

"Well, where have you been? we have a curtain at 8:30 and you're not even made up yet," said the manager. "Why, you didn't even show up for rehearsal!"

The new leading ham surveyed the company with a lifted eyebrow, walked slowly to the wall, rubbed a bit of the whitewash from it on his face, and turning to them drawled:

"What is the play?"

AD CLUB HEARS DRY DEBATE

Prohibition evils were condemned and dry law advantages upheld before members of the Pittsburgh Advertising Club at the weekly luncheon yesterday in the William Penn Hotel by a University of Pittsburgh debating team.

The debate on the subject "Resolved that the Eighteenth Amendment should be repealed and the control of the liquor traffic left to the several states" was participated in by Jess Spurel and Daniel Butler, affirmative, and Edward Crowley and Emanuel Fishkin, negative. Prof. W. M. Parrish was chairman. Highlights of the affirmative argument included corruption, disrespect for law, government and constitution and increased use of industrial alcohol. The negative debaters cited gains through elimination of the saloons, in economic factors, in more money for necessities of life and the increased industrial efficiency.

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT NEWS

LAKE-TO-SEA SHORT LINE COMPLETED

SIDEWALKS —of— PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

Probably you saw Vic Faust, the bell-ringer, in his act on Capt. Menke's Showboat at Montrose last summer. Right now Vic is in New York, rehearsing to go into a big musical comedy, "The Gang's All Here," in which he will have as company Ted Healy, Zelma O'Neal, Tom Howard and a half-dozen other names of the theater.

Mr. Pfarr

Things had not been going so well with Vic since the boat closed. He makes no secret of the fact that he has been financially embarrassed. He was loafing in a poolroom downtown when Morris Green, producer of the new show, sent the all-important word to Quin Hall, the Sun-Telegraph cartoonist, who had recommended Faust.

Vic is a sad-looking man, a pessimist, in his fifties. He does a dumb act; he makes up in the manner of the village half-wit and he rings his bells with the air of one who is doing something extremely foolish. The Pittsburgh audiences delighted to throw coins at Vic while he was doing his act and Vic was delighted to stoop over and pick up each coin, never forgetting to ring the bells and interpolating an extra ring, so it seemed, for each coin.

* * *

Vic has been weighed down by the bumps he's taken in the last four months, so he didn't appear any too elated over an opportunity to graduate from a river show into a select spot of an expensive Broadway musical. He admitted, however, he was inwardly excited.

The bell-ringer has been on the stage since he was seven and he has been ringing bells for 30 years. He made his debut as a young acrobat with an act properly called the Faust Family. It was in Australia, where Vic was born, and they made the jumps from one town to another in stage coach. Later, when the act prospered, they bought their own wagon and also made their home in it.

* * *

If Vic's act clicks on Broadway it is doubtful whether the veteran will enjoy himself any more than he does when he is working on the rivers. Salary on the river is only $15 "and cakes," but, as Vic explains, it's a living and a fellow can be happy, especially if he has a $2 bet on a horse and can look forward to some news, preferably good, when he goes downtown. Vic wouldn't touch the best drink of liquor in town, but he does like to have a little bet down on a nag. He plays a system and once he won $800 on the system, by making small bets, but his success impressed him and he graduated from the $2 class into the hundred dollar elite—for a short time.

* * *

Vic is one actor who has no illusions about himself or his act. He says he isn't showman enough to write even the slightest lines for his act. In fact, he would apply to himself that story of the bells.

Two old codgers, one deaf, were listening to Vic ringing his bells.

"That's purty bell-ringing," the one commented.

"What's that ye're saying?" the hard-of-hearing one inquired.

"That," shouted the first, "is purty good bell-ringing."

"I'm sorry," apologized the other, "I can't hear a word ye're saying for them darned bells."

* * *

(All of the foregoing we wrote before Vic departed for New York, and it is a duty to report that as he stepped onto the train his spirits hopped visibly. In fact he pounced a fist against a hand and exclaimed:

"By golly, I'm gonna see that the orchestra plays my entrance music just right. A bad entrance can spoil your whole life.")

Pershing Scores False Theory of Unpreparedness

MY EXPERIENCES IN THE WORLD WAR

By GEN. JOHN J. PERSHING,

Commander-in-Chief of the American Expeditionary Forces in the World War.

CHAPTER XXXI.

Frequent German raids and renewed activity all along the front by March 1, 1918, indicated the great German offensive might start at any time. The French General Staff thought the Allies would be able to hold without serious difficulty until we could help, but it was doubtful enough to cause grave apprehension.

It was depressing to think that 10 months had elapsed since our entry into the war and that we were just barely ready with one division of 25,000 men.

Gen. Pershing

With all our wealth, our man power and ability, that was the net result of our efforts up to the moment, all because our people had been deceived by a false and fatuous theory that it was unnecessary in time of peace to make even preliminary preparations for war.

Here we were likely to be confronted by the mightiest military offensive that the world had ever known, and it looked as though we should be compelled to stand by almost helpless and see the Allies again suffer losses of hundreds of thousands of men in their struggle against possible defeat.

In spite of these reflections, there was the hope that with the utmost effort we should yet be able to develop our latent power in time to save our friends.

At least, now that we were face to face with the crisis, it was vital that America should exert herself to the utmost to complete what she had so leisurely begun.

My diary shows the following notations:

"Chaumont, Wednesday, March 6, 1918. Heavy German raid repulsed by 1st Division Friday morning. The enemy also raided the 26th Division lines and were driven off.

Lord Brooke

"Had meeting with Cols. Hagood and Andrews on S. O. S. organization. Lord Brooke and Frazier house guests. Some American women journalists visited me that afternoon.

"Went to Ligny-en-Barrois Sunday to meet M. Clemenceau, who came to congratulate the 1st Division on success repulsing raid. Met Gen. Debeney, who was enthusiastic over conduct of our men. Spent the night at 1st Division headquarters.

"Motored to Langres with Harbord Monday to speak at opening of second session of General Staff College. Germans made raid on 42nd Division that morning."

Americans Primed

Upon conclusion of this inspection of the 1st Division I considered it ready to take the offensive at any time. It had been eight months in France, with varied experiences in training, had occupied an independent position in the St. Mihiel Sector and had made several successful trench raids. Gens. Duncan and Buck had their infantry brigades in efficient shape, and Summerall had carried the training of the artillery brigade to a high degree.

Gen. Summerall

As to the 42nd, 26th and 2nd Divisions, the two first being then with the French in quiet sectors, and the 2nd about to enter, each had yet to serve in line as an independent division to complete its training. In view of the certainty of determined German action at an early date, the quality and condition of our units were studied with solicitude by the French no less than by ourselves.

It was M. Clemenceau's custom while Prime Minister to spend Sundays visiting different portions of the front. As mentioned in my diary, he came especially to congratulate the 1st Division on its

COMMUNISTIC RALLIES HERE COLLAPSE

McKeesport Police Arrest 3, Other Meetings Pass Off With Little Disturbance

Three Communist rallies staged yesterday in Allegheny County as part of the national communist demonstration against unemployment passed with only slight disturbance requiring the attention of police.

Two men and a woman, Frank Kovack, 23, McKeesport; Michael Sparks, 34, East Pittsburgh, and Miss Anna Swetlak, 30, Duquesne, arrested in McKeesport when they attempted to speak at a Communist meeting, were committed to the county jail today. They had refused to pay fines of $25 and costs imposed by Magistrate R. C. Calhoun. Rallies also were held in the North Side and in Ambridge.

The three rallies were held late in the afternoon. In McKeesport and in Ambridge the time was set so as to attract the attention of workmen leaving industrial plants. The Pittsburgh rally was a "dud," according to police, who mingled with the small crowd in West Park, North Side.

Pittsburgh police ignored a meeting in West Park, North Side, for which the Department of Safety had issued a permit. The meeting, sponsored by the Trade Union Unity League, was marked by no disturbance while demands for relief and insurance against unemployment were made from the platform of the bandstand.

House Police Eject Pittsburgh Red

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Proceedings of the House were interrupted yesterday by shouts of a man in the gallery.

The man was seized by police and attendants before he could complete his remarks. He said:

"I wish to protest the arrest——" Then he was reached by police.

The man gave his name as Fred Kearns, and said he was from Pittsburgh, Pa., when he was rushed out of the gallery.

Fred Kearns, ejected from the gallery of the House of Representatives yesterday, resides at 11 Stevenson street, Pittsburgh. Two weeks ago he was elected to head a delegation of seven, to go to Washington in the interests of an unemployed council of Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh Woman Held In Johnstown Red Riot

JOHNSTOWN, Feb. 11.—Two men were injured and 15 persons, including a woman, were arrested here yesterday in a riot when a group of radicals attempted to stage a demonstration and parade in protest against unemployment.

Florence Karey, an organizer, of Pittsburgh, who attempted to speak at the rally at City Hall, was one of those arrested.

Miss Karey resided in the North Side, it was said at the headquarters of the Trades Unity League, James street. She is said to be an organizer for the league.

GETTING OPERA AUDITION

SYLVIA SNYDER . . . INVITED FOR METROPOLITAN AUDITION

Squirrel Hill Soprano Invited to Audition

Otto H. Kahn, New York international financier and art patron, has reached out a beckoning hand from his Long Island home, and a Pittsburgh girl will shortly leave for New York for an audition with the Metropolitan Opera Company.

The 19-year-old girl is Sylvia Snyder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Snyder, 5543 Fair Oaks street, Squirrel Hill. She has studied with Mme. Sembrich at the Curtis Music School at Philadelphia. Her voice is a dramatic soprano of great range and power. She is at present a member of the Joseph Horne Choral Society.

Miss Snyder was singing at a social recently. The guest of honor and principal speaker was Mrs. Alexander Kohut, of New York. Mrs. Kohut was attracted by the unusual quality of Miss Snyder's voice. A personal friend of Otto H. Kahn, she communicated with him on her return. Two days later came a letter from Mr. Kahn inviting Sylvia to New York for an audition. Last week she received a letter from the management of the Metropolitan Opera Company. And now she is preparing for her trip. She has her chance—now—the chance every singer dreams about and longs for.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 11.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Well, here I am back in Little Rock, just three weeks later than when I visited this section, and still there is a division of opinion in Washington as to how these folks should be fed. I don't think we have anybody in Washington that doesn't want to feed 'em. But they all want to feed 'em their way. I tell you one fellow that is certainly with 'em, and that is the weather man. It has certainly been the warmest winter in years. If the weather man ever deserts 'em with what little clothes and bed coverings they have, they will suffer. That was a mighty fine thing Mr. Hoover did about his salary donation.

Yours,

WILL.

GOLD SPIKE LINKS TWO SYSTEMS

Connellsville Ceremony Seen As Beginning of Fifth Major Eastern Carrier

By AL GOUGH,

Staff Correspondent.

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Feb. 11.—A golden spike, marking the completion of the $14,000,000 rail link with the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railway between Cochran's Mills and this place, gave Connellsville new hope for greater prosperity today with the expressed possibility that the new ribbon of steel would become part of a mid-continent trunk line connecting the Great Lakes and the Northwest with the Atlantic Seaboard at Baltimore.

The spike-driving ceremonies conducted auspiciously yesterday at the junction of the new link and the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie tracks, just beyond a massive sweep of bridge construction where the Pittsburgh and West Virginia swings into Connellsville attracted several hundred engineers and officials of the railroad and local business interests.

"GOLDEN PROSPERITY"

H. H. Temple, chief engineer of the P. & W. Va., drove the golden spike with a gilded maul, marking completion of the latest Taplin project. As he raised the heavy maul for the first blow, he declared:

"And now this project is done—may it bring golden prosperity to Connellsville and fill a long-felt railroad transportation need."

At the banquet following the spike-driving ceremonies, H. W. Nethken, vice president of P. & W. Va., voiced the possibility that the new link might become part of a mid-continent trunk. He said:

"This 38 miles of railroad directly connects the Pittsburgh & West Virginia with the Western Maryland, and completes a part of what might later be the fifth system. It opens a new fast, short route to various parts of the country, and will enable our road to participate in the handling of thousands upon thousands of tons of freight that heretofore we could not handle because our rates did not apply."

SEVEN TUNNELS

In an address at the co club, Temple, who was in c of the construction of the disclosed that in the 3 stretch from Connellsvi Cochran's Mills there bridges and seven tunnels cluding a short branch now construction to connect with Donora Southern Railway, a line owned by the American Steel and Wire Company.

Mob Periling Dry Agents In Raid Broken Up

A crowd estimated at more than 100 threatened two prohibition agents late yesterday when they raided a garage at Bridge and Middle streets, Wilmerding, and seized two moving vans, one of which the agents declared contained 894 quarts of Canadian whisky.

The jeering mob, comprised of men and boys, dispersed when a squad of agents arrived from Pittsburgh headquarters. The trucks were seized, it was charged, after the whisky had been transferred from one to the other in the garage. The truck said to have brought the load in bore New Jersey license plates. It was seen along the highway and trailed to Wilmerding by the agents. Drivers of both trucks escaped when the agents invaded the garage.

The whisky, packed in sacks, and the trucks were stored in the government warehouse.

Dr. Johnson is vice president of the Birth Control League of Allegheny County and secretary and treasurer of the American Eugenics Society.

He spoke at a meeting in the community hall of the East End Christian Church, South Highland avenue, under the auspices of the Pennsylvania Committee of the American Eugenics Society. The Rev. Dr. John Ray Ewers, pastor of the church, presided.

The bill to broaden the law on birth control will be presented soon by a Pittsburgh member of the Legislature, Dr. Johnson said, and provides that nothing in the existing law will interfere with physicians in their regular practice giving advice to patients with regard to birth control.

A maternal health center will be established in Pittsburgh as soon as the Birth Control League has a sufficient fund for the purpose, Dr. Johnson stated. The center is already in existence here in a small way, he said.

Experimental Work to Be Extended Here; Thaden Will Continue in Charge

General Aviation Corporation, a subsidiary of the General Motors, Inc., today entered the aviation industry here through the purchase of control of the Pittsburgh Metal Airplane Company, with extensive experimental work planned at the firm's Island avenue plant.

The board of directors and officers of the new concern will be elected within the next week, according to George R. Hann, president of the Pittsburgh Aviation Industries Corporation, which originally financed and established the concern here in 1928. Hann and Richard W. Robbins, vice president, will be included.

H. V. Thaden, designer of the all-metal monoplane T4A, will continue as general manager. Mrs. Louise McPhetridge Thaden, director of P. A. I. C. instruction for women, will resign to devote her time to cross-country experimental flights in the metal plane. Active production in the local plant is expected by early fall.

Hann announced the new firm will continue experimental research with the Aluminum Corporation of America.

Rising temperatures today put an end to the cold snap which has gripped the Pittsburgh district for the past few days. Continued fair weather was predicted.

Dipping to an official low of 15 this morning, the second lowest of the year, the mercury was expected to mount to 30 this afternoon.

Eight degrees was reported at Forecaster W. S. Brotzman's home. Today is the anniversary of the coldest weather experienced in Pittsburgh—a record of 20 below, recorded in 1899.

Bellefonte was the coldest place in this vicinity, according to weather bureau reports. Ten below was reported there.

'OPERA TWINS' PLEASE THRONG

The cast:

CAVALLERIA RUSTICANA

Santuzza, a Village Girl .....

Lola, Wife of Alfio, Teamster .....

Turiddu, a Young Soldier .....

Alfio, a Teamster .....

Lucia, Mother of Turiddu .....

I PAGLIACCI

Canio, in the play, Pagliacci, "Punchinello," Master of a Village Comedy Troupe .....

Nedda, in the play, Columbine, His Wife .....

Tonio, in the play, Taddeo, the Clown .....

Beppo, in the play, Harlequin .....

Silvio, a Young Peasant .....

It seemed as if every lyric enthusiast came to Syria Mosque last night to hear the Chicago Opera Company's second bill, the well-nigh perennially lovely and well-worn Mascagni "Cavalleria Rusticana" and Leoncavallo's "I Pagliacci." The cast was of more even excellence than on the previous night, and both plays with their themes of violent jealousy kept the audience intensely interested.

Mr. Lissfelt

The orchestra under Roberto Moranzoni, assisted by Frank St. Leger, played brilliantly at all times, with moments of real distinction during the Intermezzo of Cavalleria and the Prelude of Pagliacci, of striking beauty of tone. The chorus in both operas had occasion to show its talent, and never lagged in singing or in playing.

The outstanding performance of the evening was Claudia Muzio's Santuzza. It was the greatest Santuzza in my memory, and now we may believe that Muzio is the greatest singing actress on the American operatic stage. Jane Cowl and Farrar have both played the part, but I remember Geraldine Farrar as a pretty Muzio is, to begin with a good singer, and from her musical background she drew the dramatic power to give her acting, especially in regard to restraint in the score and to the reaction of her acting partners. From her very entrance to the sudden tragic and terrible end, Muzio's every step, gesture, facial expression blended into the part with its most grave, each gaining increase the power of the whole. The betrayal of her lover by Alfio was her finest scene, and for Robert Ringling as Alfio responded magnificently to his lead.

Antonio Cortis has a ringing tenor and gave a very worthy interpretation to Turiddu. Comprimice Eberhart's Lucia was the Lucia to find the role worthy of study, and Jennie Tourel's Lola was a type.

Mr. Charles Thomas was the star of I Pagliacci. Gifted with a mobile face and a voice of rich quality, he made the tragic and comic of Tonio's nature stand out clearly. He carried the audience with every phrase. Helen Buck's Nedda was immature. Though she has the voice enough and Mary Lewis's Silvio was almost amorous, Dorothy Marshall's Canio lacked vocal power here, his popular aria brought a storm of applause. Giuseppe Cavadore completed the cast as Beppo.

J. FRED LISSFELT

Society Folk Turn Out In Force for Last Night of Opera

The Chicago Civic Opera Company at its second and final appearance last night in Syria Mosque was greeted by as large and as enthusiastic an audience as the opening night.

From the orchestra circle to the ceiling, of the second balcony were rows and rows of applauding men and women. Many who were there the opening night I saw last night, and many who were not, too. And sartorially the closing night was as brilliant as the opening night.

Of the box-commissions groups promenaded around and down the corridors stopping to chat with friends. Among these were the J. Porter Gillespies with Mrs. Gillespie wearing a most unusual gown of black chiffon having a bolero jacket of the same material draped with black sequins. And the skirt was knife pleated. Mrs. A. Rex Flinn was there wearing black lace, and Virginia Goldsborough an attractive gown of gold satin.

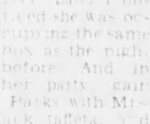
Among the promenaders was Mrs. David Gilmore, wearing a gown of black velvet. Later I noticed she was occupying the same box as the night before. And in her party were the Lewis A. Parks with Mrs. Park wearing black taffeta, and Mrs. Alex H. Hunter.

John F. Casey entertained a box party again last night. In the J. Lamont Hughes's box, his daughter Rosemary Casey, and the Reginald G. Quales as his guests. Rosemary wore white satin and Mrs. Quale was in black velvet with a shoulder corsage of gardenias. Mrs. Hughes was stately in a gown of white chiffon and rhinestones.

In a neighboring box were the E. W. Mudges and their nephew and niece, the Joseph Sheffields of New York and the Ernest T. Weirs. Mrs. Mudge wore black velvet, and Mrs. Sheffield white satin.

Chatting in the foyer were the John O. Burgwins, with Mrs. Burgwin in an attractive gown of black velvet with a cape of the same material forming brief sleeves. And I believe I had a glimpse of Mrs. B. F. Jones III in a black crepe gown, and I saw one of the debutantes, Barbara Irwin wearing black crepe with a low-cut decolletage and a strand of turquoise beads as her only ornament.

Mrs. John W. Lawrence, who again occupied a box, wore a vivid green crepe gown with a tiered skirt. Mrs. Theodore F. Smith chose white crepe, and Mrs. Herbert A. Mayblue velvet.



And I saw Evelyn Evans in a cherry lace gown chatting with Robert McClintic and Stewart McClintic. Mrs. T. Howe Nimick wore black velvet, and Mary Schiras white satin with a wrap of shell-pink satin suggestive of the Grecian influence. And I'm sure I had a fleeting glimpse of Mrs. Hollon Forbes Baker, and of Mrs. Euclid Allderdice and her son, Norman Allderdice.

Also with Mrs. Gordon King was Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby in black velvet. Mrs. Gordon Fisher, in glorious silver lame. Rebecca George was there in green satin and Mrs. James L. Stuart and her daughter Emily.

Elaine Fitzgerald, in a striking dress of ivory cream linen lace, had a sculptured peplum arrangement with her mother, Mrs. Thomas Fitzgerald, and Rosamond Fitch with her mother, Mrs. Chester Van Kleeck.

Others I saw were Mrs. T. [illegible] Mrs. Marshall Wilson, Mrs. Mortimer Miller in a camel velvet wrap, Mrs. Francis H. McKnight, Mrs. William Walker, Mrs. Rutherford Waters and Mrs. Gilbert Roberts. And I also saw Virginia Doyle and Miss Dorothy [illegible].

The Walter F. Schleiters were among the patrons with Mrs. Schleiter wearing a black velvet wrap and so were Mrs. J. Henry O'Neill and Josephine O'Neill.

Also at the opera were Mrs. John A. Byerly in white satin, Mrs. Sidney Burns in black crepe, Mrs. Frederic Ickes Merrick in green crepe and Mrs. George Faber Downey in black satin. With Mrs. Merrick was her mother, Mrs. Herbert Du Puy.

* * *

Betty Childs, a debutante of the season, who has been in Palm Beach, the guest of the Maitland Alexanders, arrived with her mother, Mrs. Clinton Lowrie Childs. Betty wore a striking gown of scarlet crepe. Jane Allderdice was in blue crepe, and Nancy Allderdice turquoise crepe, made with a bolero jacket and elbow sleeves banded in sable.

Mrs. Roy A. Hunt wore black net with a wrap of ermine. Mrs. W. Tyrrell Johnston wore calabar lace with a sable wrap. Mrs. J. Francis Drake, gold brocade, and Mrs. John H. Nicholson was there, too. With her was her daughter Betty, in white lace and a wrap of American beauty velvet.

Mrs. Robert Carson chose powder blue crepe, Genevieve Bell, black satin, and Mrs. Calvin Wells, shell pink scintillating with rhinestones and sequins.

The Howard Hale McClintics were there and the junior Howard Hale McClintics, the Francis A. Keatings, the Harry Dangerfields, the W. C. Morelands and the John L. Porters.

Chatting in the foyer were Mrs. George Ebbert, Mrs. Samuel Harden Church, Mrs. James Hay Reed, the William Watson Smiths and Mrs. Carl Emmerling. And I saw Mrs. John B. Semple, Jr., in black lace, and Margaret Forrester in yellow satin.

PERSHING TELLS OF PLANS TO HALT GERMANS

Distressed Over Delay in Preparing Own Troops For Crisis Which Neared

success in repulsing the raid, and was enthusiastic over the conduct of the troops on that occasion.

The vigor and the aggressive spirit he displayed, notwithstanding his age, were contagious. On these visits he wanted to talk with the men right up at the front, and while it was not always convenient to humor him one had to admire his attitude.

Stresses Preparation

I wished especially to be present at the opening of the general staff school in order to emphasize the importance of this training. My speaking during the war was entirely extemporaneous, but it seemed more effective than if read from manuscript.

In this talk I stressed the necessity of preparation for duties that were expected of staff officers and dwelt on their obligations and their relations to the line. The new class for the second three-months session consisted, as usual, of officers selected from the various units of staff and line.

The course of instruction had been carefully laid out by Brig. Gen. McAndrew and his assistants, all graduates of our Fort Leavenworth school. It was based particularly on our own staff organization and consisted of an intensive study of lectures, specially prepared texts and practical problems.

On the visit to the 42rd Division we spent the night at Baccarat as guests of M. and Mme. Michaut. At dinner, with all the children and grandchildren present, the family formed a most charming group. The town had been partially destroyed early in the war, and now that the Germans were again active because of the presence of Americans, it looked as though they might make the destruction complete.

I recall that when the possibility of putting an end to war was mentioned during the conversation at dinner, the grandmother of the household said, "No, that is not likely. We have had war here in this part of Europe every 50 years during the last thousand."

That is the view of nine out of 10 people, and still they go about the work of reconstruction as though such a thing as war could never happen again.

Victim Wants to Stay

The front occupied by the 168th Regiment, near Badonvillers, had been under a severe artillery attack on the fourth and a trench mortar platoon had been almost completely destroyed.

The French Army Commander congratulated Gen. Menoher on the way in which our troops repulsed this raid. After an inspection of the different regiments of the division and a visit to the scene of this action, I went to the hospital to see the wounded.

Gen. Menoher.

They were all very cheerful, especially a young officer, Lieut. A. W. Terrell, 51st Artillery Regiment, who had lost a leg. He said that he wanted to stay through to the end of the war, and hoped he could find something to do as a clerk.

All these first contacts with the enemy were relatively small affairs, of course, but they furnished many examples of what we could expect of the American soldier.

My diary notes this:

"Paris, Sunday, March 10, 1918. Spent Thursday morning with Kernan, Langfitt and Atterbury and made adjustments in port and railway construction and management. Visited Camp de Mailly, where seacoast artillery is having splendid training under Gen. Coe.

"On Friday visited Edwards' 26th Division serving on Chemin des Dames under Gen. Maud'huy, the French Corps commander. Arrived in Paris late at night during airplane attack. Branch of Judge Advocate General's office established at my headquarters.

"Upon Col. Bradley's report of only 30-day medical supplies on hand, sent urgent cable requesting immediate shipments. Cabled disapproval of suggestion by Mr. Paderewski for organization of division of men with Polish antecedents. Secretary of War Baker landed at Brest today."

Cooking Schools Opened

Maj. Gen. Maud'huy spoke with considerable enthusiasm of the men and of the officers of the 26th Division, below regimental commanders, and especially praised their conduct of trench raids. He complimented Gen. Traub, one of the brigade commanders, but was of the opinion that the higher officers, generally, needed more experience to make them efficient.

American troops that served with Gen. Maud'huy held him in high esteem. He was scrupulous regarding their instruction, to which he gave special attention.

He was very solicitous of the welfare of our troops, even going so far as to interest himself in the preparation of their food by detailing French cooks to teach ours the art.

When I expressed my appreciation of his action, he said: "You know, we are a nation of cooks, and we delight in preparing good things to eat." After their instruction the cooks in these units did better, thanks to the initiative of this fine old French general.

Many of the cooks of the old army became experts, and the men in the early days in the West fared better as a rule than our men in France, where the cooks lacked experience. Personal supervision by officers and the establishment of cooking schools brought improvement in due course.

However, there is little doubt that much of the intestinal trouble in our divisions during the early part of their service abroad was caused by poorly cooked food.

As soon as our troops began serving in the front line in so-called quiet sectors we were faced with the problem of handling casualty lists. The solution reached was to defer cabling the lists until some time after the engagement and then to send them in groups, to be given out by the War Department, so the particular battle in which the casualty occurred could not be identified.

Decoration Problems

If we had given the names to the press at home immediately that would have been the equivalent to telling the enemy the engagement in which they occurred. The French published no lists, but the information was sent to the local Mayor, who, in turn, notified the family of the soldier, at the same time extending his condolences.

Contrasted with this quiet, sympathetic way of giving such news to relatives, the method of publishing column after column of killed and wounded in the papers which people would eagerly scan day after day seemed inconsiderate and cruel.

The problem of decorations in our army had long been a knotty one, and except for the Medal of Honor and the Certificate of Merit we had only campaign badges and those given for marksmanship. The Allies desired to confer their decorations on our men who served with distinction under them, but we were not permitted to accept foreign decorations without permission from Congress.

There is no doubt that some sort of visible evidence of exceptional military service arouses pride and stimulates effort. The generous bestowal of decorations in each Allied army by its commander-in-chief was unquestionably an important factor in maintaining the morale of their troops. Our own Medal of Honor had inspired many a heroic act.

As it was a matter of importance to our officers and men, the whole question of decorations was taken up by the War Department on my suggestion with the result that congressional action established certain medals of our own and authorized our soldiers to receive those of foreign governments.

Promoted Friendship

The medals created by Congress at this time were the Distinguished Service Cross for extraordinary heroism in connection with military operations against an armed enemy, and the Distinguished Service Medal for exceptionally meritorious service in a position of great responsibility, which replaced the certificate of merit.

These were in addition to the Medal of Honor, our highest decoration, established in 1862, for gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of life above and beyond the call of duty. The award of the Certificate of Merit was discontinued.

Authority was also eventually given the War Department to confer our decorations on Allied officers and men who had rendered deserving service with our armies. The different grades of medals in the various countries were not entirely the same as ours.

We had none that corresponded to the French or Belgian Croix de Guerre. There ought to have been one for gallantry in action somewhat less conspicuous than that covered by the Medal of Honor or the Distinguished Service Cross. I made a recommendation to this effect, but nothing came of it.

There were thousands of instances in our armies where a medal of this class should have been bestowed. We were as liberal in decorating Allied officers and men as the provisions of our law would permit, and there is no doubt that the exchange of decorations helped materially to promote friendly relations.

Secretary Baker arrived at Brest March 10, as my diary showed, and I met him and his party in Paris the next morning. The Secretary's party consisted of Maj. Gen. W. M. Black, chief of engineers; Lieut. Col. M. L. Brett, Commander R. D. White, of the Navy, and Mr. Ralph Hayes, his secretary.

Mr. Baker

It was essential that the Secretary receive opportunity to inspect our whole layout, from the front areas to the services of supply, that he might become familiar with plans, observe the progress made toward their completion and obtain first-hand information of our requirements, all of which he was especially anxious to do.

Aviation Advances

Leaving Paris March 12 we inspected our most important ports, depots, hospitals, regulating stations, motor parks and schools, and returned March 17 to my headquarters at Chaumont.

The main air service school at Issoudun, which we visited, was a hive of activity, being one of the 15 schools where early instruction in flying was given. Gen. Foulois and Col. Kilner went with us through the school, the shops and the Red Cross and Y buildings.

I think the secretary was surprised to see here the really expert flying considered necessary to prepare aviators for their hazardous life at the front.

Aviation had now developed into a real fighting service, in contrast to the early days of the war, when aviators of opposing armies used to salute each other as they passed on flights of hostile observation.

By the time we entered the war airplanes were armed and classified for different missions, and the training was based upon certain tactical principles of attack and defense, which our aviators had to learn and practice. But it was necessary to become an expert flier to become an efficient fighter either alone or in group formation.

In trench warfare the aerial photography of the air service became the main source of information of the enemy's positions, from which firing data of the artillery was largely obtained. Although this took careful preparation, the rapidity with which our aviators learned was remarkable.

An Efficient System

At Gievres, about 125 miles directly south of Paris, on our main line of supply running to the front, were 20,000 men employed under Col. Charles J. Symmonds managing our largest interior depot.

To illustrate the celerity with which the system operated we need take but one example, which occurred when everything in the depot was in full swing.

At 8:15 one morning in August a telegram was received ordering exactly 4,596 tons of supplies, including 1,250,000 cans of tomatoes, 1,000,000 pounds of sugar, 600,000 cans of corned beef, 750,000 pounds of tinned hash and 150,000 pounds of dry beans. At 6:15 o'clock in the evening or just 10 hours later, this colossal requisition, which required 457 cars for transport, was loaded and on its way to the advance depot.

No other place gave such an impression of the tremendous task of supplying our armies and the perfection of organization necessary to do it efficiently.

The secretary got a birdseye view of the general plan which would provide the supplies for an army of 2,000,000, and which, with additional construction, would be able to meet the demands of an army twice that size.

Back at Chaumont I received word that arrangements had been made for the shipment of six divisions for training with the British—the 77th, 82nd, 28th, 78th, 80th and 30th.

Fay King Brands Mutilation of Library Records a Thoughtless Crime

By FAY KING

The public libraries have a grave complaint to make.

Many persons who are cross word puzzle fiends, or anxious to verify the astonishing facts now so popular with newspaper readers, are tearing out pages and paragraphs from books and papers.

In their haste and enthusiasm, they do not realize what great harm they are doing, or they would desist.

All writers, authors and students, who go to the libraries to do research work, carry notebooks and copy out what they are after. They would not dream of taking a page, a paragraph or picture. For they well know that, had one before them thoughtlessly done so, they could not now themselves find what they need.

Be considerate of another's needs.

Edith Phones Dicky About Veritzen's Gift to Madge

... With a little feeling of panic at my heart, I ran through the apartment, but she was nowhere to be seen.

I stood still in the center of the living room for a second or two, scolding myself out of the panic-fear which her absence had sent me. I had not thought it possible for Mary to leave our apartment or that of the Underwoods' voluntarily when she knew how carefully we were safeguarding her. Yet it was not like her to go to the Underwood apartments when she supposed, as I knew she did, that everyone was asleep over there.

I could have no compunctions, however, and I knew that Lillian at least was awake, if, indeed, she had returned from her shopping trip. I hurried to the door and across the hall to the Underwood apartment and rang the bell.

Lillian opened the door, and at sight of my face, said before I could voice my fears:

"Mary is here. Everything is all right. Come in and see our little dove."

She interrupted the last words from the side of her mouth, and I followed her into the living room. She gestured to the window, where at opposite sides of a daintily spread breakfast table, Mary and Noel were eating a little—and gazing soulfully at each other—much.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Don't Neglect Nervous Disorders in Children

"Chorea," or "Saint Vitus's Dance," as it is commonly called, is a disease of the nervous system. It occurs in early school life, usually among girls between five and fifteen years of age.

Dr. Copeland

The exact cause of this disease is not known. It is usually associated with acute rheumatic fever and heart disease. Overpressure in school work is often an important factor.

Anemia in children must be considered as a factor, because most of the cases show very distinct blood changes. Chorea may follow as a complication of any of the infectious diseases. This is particularly true of scarlet fever and typhoid fever.

The disease comes on slowly. Quite often the child is accused merely of being "nervous." If at school it is noticed that he is having difficulty in writing or drawing. At home, the child is continually dropping things, has difficulty in feeding and dressing himself. At times the feet fail, and there is stumbling, with frequent falls and difficulty in climbing stairs. In other cases the spasm is in the face. Unconsciously, he makes grimaces, for which the poor child may be punished.

When the disease is fully developed the movements characteristic of this ailment are unmistakable. There are irregular and jerky motions, varying from an occasional muscular twitching to almost constant agitation.

Excitement, fatigue and embarrassment, or any effort on the part of the child to control these movements, increases them. During sleep the movements disappear.

Unfortunately, these children are brought to the physician's attention weeks after the onset of the disease. Upon the first sign of suspicion of chorea the child should be taken to a doctor. If neglected the condition back of this disease may injure the heart.

Children with chorea should not be permitted to attend school. They should receive plenty of fresh air, nourishing foods and adequate rest. Such children should never be ridiculed or punished because of the movements they cannot help. They cannot control them, and, as I have said, any effort on their part to do so increases the movements.

In severe cases the rest treatment is imperative. This means placing the child in bed, where complete mental and physical rest may be obtained. This perhaps, may be best accomplished in a hospital.

This disease has a tendency to recur, particularly in the spring months. Children who have had one attack should be watched carefully, particularly after they have returned to school. They should not be forced to do too much school work, and should be given frequent vacations.

Household Hints

Keep in the sewing-room a padded covered brick to which any sewing can be pinned that must be held taut while hand work is being done.

When preparing fruit salad, sprinkle bananas, peaches, pears and apples with lemon juice or marinate with French dressing as soon as they are cut. This prevents discoloration from exposure to air.

Do you always think that when you are entertaining you must serve some fancy cut of high priced meat? Some clever women who do not wish to have to measure their hospitality by the enormity of their butcher bills make themselves famous for a special stew, ragout or some savory dish that can be made with an inexpensive cut of meat. And in these days when so many people dine generally in restaurants, such foods are a welcome treat. One woman established an enviable reputation as hostess through the fame of her roast beef hash. Every restaurant serves steaks and chops but few specialize in the delicious homely dishes that everyone loves.

Poorly rinsed clothes are apt to scorch easily when ironed.

To remove fish or onion odors from dishes, soak them for a few minutes in warm soapsuds to which has been added one teaspoonful of ammonia; then scald and wash as usual. Or, try a tablespoonful of vinegar in the washing water.

Now that everyone is taking Dame Fashion's hand and wearing fabric gloves, it is wise to know how best to wash them. For, of course, the washable qualities of these fabric gloves are one of their greatest assets and one that has endeared them to us this season. It is such a simple matter to rinse them out at night and by morning have a perfectly fresh pair of gloves to start the day with. A pure white soap and warm water should be used. Then to rinse, hold the glove under the cold water faucet, permitting the water to inflate the fingers. Don't wring, but hang them to dry with the fingers inflated and they will retain a good shape. If the gloves are washed each night they not only look fresher, but the soil is easily removed and the fabric wears longer.

Correct Manners

Calling Upon the Bereaved Family

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Which call me in person at a house where death has occurred one leave a calling card, and if such is the case what form of condolence written on it? Often the obituary in the newspapers will ... the hours for calling.

2. Does the leaving of cards depend on whether you see the members of the family or not?

D. B.

1. It is correct to leave your visiting card at the house with a message written on it if you wish, though this is not necessary, since the fact that you are leaving the card at this time conveys the message that you wish to convey when you hear of the death. But if you know the people well enough to see them when you call, then you would not leave your card.

2. Yes.

Upon Leaving the Table

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When four young ladies were leaving a public restaurant one evening recently one lady remarked that the other had not replaced their chairs. Another young lady maintained that to arrange and replace chairs in public restaurants was very bad form.

Please let us know about this.

M. L.

To replace the chair in which we have been sitting is not necessarily poor form ... since obviously there isn't any reason why we shouldn't do it if we wish ... but it is not considered necessary to do this, and usually people do not do it. It is best to leave the chair "as is."

The Treasure Chest—Of Sentiments and Linens

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am preparing for a hope chest and am undecided as to what to put in it. Mother states that I should embroider articles and place them there, but I am sure that isn't enough.

2. My fiance thinks that he should buy the hope chest, and I believe that I should buy it. Who is right? ADELE.

1. I have prepared a list of the things that are appropriate to put into the hope chest, and I should love to send it to you, if you will send me an addressed envelope. Hope chests nowadays are not so luxuriously outfitted as they used to be, for styles in linen are changing so rapidly that the girl doesn't want to buy too much.

2. Either is correct. Often the bride-to-be attaches a great sentiment to the hope chest that her future husband gives her, and quite correctly, too, I should be a treasure chest o' sentiment and linens.

Attire for the Formal Reception

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you be kind enough to tell me what is the proper attire for ladies and gentlemen at a confirmation reception given at a hotel from 4 to 6 p. m. A. X.

Formal afternoon clothes should be worn, as at any reception held during these daytime hours.

"LIVE BETTER FOR LESS"

Safe, Secure sanitary protection —that's Kotex

YOU should make certain—when you buy sanitary pads—that you are getting the safest protection possible. Protect your health. Assure your comfort. Feel well groomed, at ease. Be sure you ask for Kotex.

Kotex is soft, gentle, easy. And it stays soft. It absorbs laterally—that means greater efficiency—a greater area of protection than other types of pad give you. It gives equal protection, worn on either side. Of course, Kotex is disposable, too. That's why millions of women first abandoned old-fashioned makeshifts.

Hospitals use both Kotex and the delicate, efficient absorbent of which it is made. That should certainly recommend it for your use.

Quinn Stays in Majors. — Tener's All-Time Team.
Robins' Staff Oldest. — Papkes Still Prominent.
Paterson Honors Honus. — Pare May Join Tilden.

NATIONAL HAS ALL SPITTERS BUT ONE

BASEBALL'S BIG SHOW, seemingly, just can't go on without old Jack Quinn. If one club drops him, it means only that he will be picked up by another. That has happened several times in the course of his long career, and another instance is now added to the list in the action of the Brooklyn club in signing the ancient right-hander to a 1931 contract. It was thought that Quinn was on his way out of the main tent finally when the Athletics dropped him on November 10 and none of the other clubs appeared willing to take him on, but he has been saved at the eleventh hour by the Robins and regains his place as the oldest player in the first set.

Jack Quinn

With Quinn on the Brooklyn staff, the National League is given almost a corner on the remaining spitball talent in the majors. There are only four surviving spitters and three of them are in the Heydler loop — Quinn, with the Robins, Burleigh Grimes, with the Cardinals and Clarence Mitchell, with the Giants. The only moist-ball expert left in the American League is Urban Faber, of the White Sox.

GRIMES WILL BE the only member of the surviving quartet under 40 when the 1931 season begins. Burleigh will be 39 on August 18. Mitchell, the lone left-hander on the list, will be 40 on February 22. Faber will be 42 on September 7, and Quinn, according to the record books, will be 46 on July 5, but is said actually to be close to 50.

The addition of Quinn gives Brooklyn the oldest pitching staff in the big leagues. It is hard to recall another major-loop outfit that carried three hurlers averaging more than 40 years, but even with Quinn listed at 45, though he is older, Adolfo Luque scheduled to reach his fortieth milestone on August 4, and Dazzy Vance to celebrate his thirty-eighth anniversary on March 4, the average age of the venerable Flatbush trio is 41. Yet Brooklyn comes close to being a first pennant choice this year.

THIS WILL NOT be Quinn's first appearance in the National League. In 1913 he pitched eight games for the Boston Braves, who had brought him from Rochester in the International League, but in 1914 he ignored a Boston reservation and joined the Baltimore club of the Federal League.

Quinn has completed 28 seasons of professional baseball, having started his career with the Connellsville club of the old Pennsylvania State League in 1903. Brooklyn is his seventh major league club, as he pitched previously for the Yankees (two separate engagements), Braves, White Sox, Red Sox, Baltimore Federals and Athletics.

PITTSBURGH ISN'T THE only city that likes to honor Honus Wagner on his birthday. Paterson, N. J., where Honus played his final minor league engagement, also feels that it has a claim on the former king of ball players, and the fans of that town are planning to give him a testimonial dinner on Tuesday, February 24, when he will celebrate his fifty-seventh anniversary. Wagner went to Paterson under Manager Ed Barrow after the 1895 season from Steubenville. He played 109 games with the Paterson Atlantic League club in 1896 and 74 more in 1897 before going to Louisville in the National League. Other famous players who saw service in Paterson were Bill Armour, Charley Bastian, George Smith, Leon Viau, Dick Cogan, Pat Flaherty, Sam McMackin and Emmett Heidrick.

John K. Tener

SPEAKING OF THE immortal Wagner he has just been chosen for the shortstop position on another all-time club. This time he is given that award by no less an authority than John Kinley Tener, of Charleroi, former governor of Pennsylvania, following the action of Connie Mack, Babe Ruth, John McGraw, Monte Cross and others who have recently picked mythical teams.

Few men are as well qualified as ex-Gov. Tener to select an all-time team. He has been in close touch with the game for half a century, starred as a pitcher in the National and Players' Leagues after a term in the New England League, was in the fall of 1888 a member of the party making the first baseball tour of the world, was president of the National League from 1914 to the middle of 1918, and has been a fan and a regular game goer ever since. He is also at present a director of the Philadelphia National League club.

WAGNER IS NOT the only former Pirate picked by the former Governor. Fred Clarke is selected as left fielder and Rube Waddell is chosen as the left-hander of the pitching staff. Tener's complete all-time team follows:

FROM CALIFORNIA COME reports of an argument among the boxing fans out there as to who's who in the Papke family. Paul Lowry tells of two Papkes fighting in Los Angeles rings, but they are not related in the remotest degree. One is Young Papke, brother of Ten-Second Papke, of Vernon four-round days. The other is Billy Papke, Jr., son of the former middleweight champion. Young Papke has been fighting at Hollywood. Billy, Jr., with his father in his corner, has been fighting at the Olympic Club. Young Papke is of Italian extraction. Billy, Jr., comes of German stock.

AMONG GUESSES AS to the identity of the mysterious fourth member of the Tilden professional tennis troupe, a hazard to the effect that Emmett Pare, Chicago product and former Georgetown University ace, will round out the quartet of "Big Bill," Frank Hunter, Karel Kozeluh & Co. might not be far from the mark.

Pare's association with Tilden has been characterized by cordiality, and it is perhaps significant that the youthful Middle Westerner as recently as last Saturday met the former United States titleholder in both singles and doubles as the feature of a court exhibition at Punta Gorda, Fla.

PARE, TO BE SURE, was not the only amateur engaging in the southern fray, for S. Jarvis Adams, Jr., ex-Pittsburgher, and Sidney Smith, of New York, also were in the picture.

Emmett Pare

Neither Adams nor Smith, however, looms as likely timber for the Tilden entourage, whereas Pare, not long out of college and with evident intention of making a serious proposition of tennis, would make a logical fourth player.

THE CHICAGO LAD, while not on a par with the immortals of the game, was good enough in 1929 to capture the national clay court singles championships and the honor that he has garnered in strong competition since his debut, while a mere youngster about a decade ago are numerous enough to warrant his being included in any assemblage of racqueters. He is sufficiently skilled to function admirably as a foil for even Tilden, Hunter or Kozeluh at singles, and his ability as a doubles performer is unquestioned. Incidentally, Pare was the first of that brilliant Georgetown net triumvirate, composed of himself, Gregory Mangin and Dooley Mitchell, to attain outstanding fame and to elevate the Washington institution to the front rank of eastern colleges in the fostering of tennis talent.

By CARL W. SHATTO

The Yellow Jackets today basked in the sunshine of an unusual and exceptionally satisfying achievement—a triumph over the despised Cleveland Indians, attained by the narrow but very sufficient margin of 1 to 0 at Duquesne Garden last night.

While sitting back at their ease today the local skaters watched the sunshine do much by way of dissolving the clouds obscuring their view of an International League hockey championship play-off berth, and as they tenderly nursed a bruise or two they smiled at the thought that they were in a position to move into fourth place in the league race by the end of the week.

SCORE COMES EARLY

Although Lloyd McIntyre and Milt Halliday, a couple of nimble forwards, engineered the only scoring play in last night's bitter duel, Gordy Fraser, Leo Reise and Goalie Albie Cox, a trio of sturdy and capable backfielders, bagged the major portion of the laurels attending the Pittsburgh triumph.

About a minute before the close of the first period, McIntyre broke free and rushed the puck down the right lane. He succeeded in eluding the Cleveland wing guarding him as he crossed the blue line, and he was unaccompanied as he veered in toward the Indians' net. Before he could let go his shot, however, a visiting defense man bore down upon him, and as they collided McIntyre deftly passed the disc to Halliday, free in front of the Cleveland goal. Milt took one look at the Cleveland cage, picked out an unguarded portion for a target, and bang! the victory goal was home.

STRONG IN DEFENSE

Although the victory goal climaxed a very fast, cool and nifty play, McIntyre and Halliday had to work only a fraction of a minute to manufacture the score. Defensemen Frazer and Reise and Goalie Cox, however, had to work at top speed throughout the 60 minutes of bitter battling, and the fact that the Indians were unable to score a goal is conclusive proof that their work was flawless.

In the first period the local backfielders were given brilliant support by the Jacket forwards, and most of the sting was taken out of the Cleveland combination assaults before they reached the Pittsburgh defensemen. Throughout most of the second period and the first half of the third and final stanza, however, the Pittsburgh forwards appeared to check rather listlessly, with the result that the visiting attackers were able to break in on the local defense without interference, and pepper Cox with shots time after time.

About the middle of the final stanza the local centers and wingmen "came to life" again, with the result that although the Indians attacked more determinedly than ever, they were able to make much less progress.

PLAY CAUTIOUSLY

After Halliday had scored, the Jacket forwards were instructed by Roy D. Schooley, president and manager, to play cautiously, draw no penalties, concentrate on the defense and shun combination plays that might result in their being left stranded in Cleveland territory. Heeding these wise words, the locals permitted the visitors to do practically all of the attacking, and the Indian defense seldom was troubled from

GROVERS PLAY TITAN FIVE; TECH COPS

GAMES TONIGHT.

Catholic U. vs. Duquesne, Duke Gym.
West Va. vs. Navy, Annapolis.
Bethany vs. Waynesburg, Waynesburg.
Grove City vs. Westminster, New Wilmington.

By JESS CARVER.

Duquesne University's gym will be all lit up tonight as the Dukes open their week's college basketball campaigning. As hosts for the evening the Catholic University passers of Washington, D. C., will exchange swats with the locals.

Duquesne's motif in tonight's fracas will be one of revenge. Catholic U. hung one on the Bluff varsity when the latter was visiting in Washington a month ago. Since then, the Dukes have won one game and lost one, beating Georgetown and losing here last week to Geneva.

This fellow Johnny Oliver, who starred against the Red and Blue here in football last fall and scored 14 points for his team when it sank the local in basketball, will be in the visitors' lineup at a guard.

In a preliminary tussle, the Johnstown Junior College five will stack up against the unbeaten Duke frosh.

The probable varsity lineup:

Titans.		Catholic U.
Abels	f	Searcy
Benedict	f	Spinelli
McGeever	c	Flynn
Stephens	g	Cunningham
Parris	g	Oliver

Referee—Beggs. Umpire—Snyder. Walter Waite.

TITANS, GROVERS CLASH

The remainder of the night's card is as attractive as it is light. At New Wilmington, the towering Titans clash with Grove City in a return battle. Westminster took the Grovers in a somewhat listless game at Grove City to open the season and on their home court, figure to repeat tonight.

Bethany's unbeaten Bisons leave the fastness of their Buffalo Creek preserve to test the stingers of the Waynesburg Yellow Jackets at Waynesburg and West Virginia continues its touring in the East by meeting Navy at Annapolis.

Skibos Victors

At Washington last night, Carnegie Tech's valiant Tartans resumed their campaigning after the annual layoff while mid-term examinations were being disposed of by taking Wash-Jeff for the second time in right handy fashion. The score of the contest was 38 to 24, a steady barrage of field goals in the last five minutes of play establishing an almost prohibitive Tech margin.

Carnegie's play was excellent, being as snappy and impressive as it was when the Tartans were riding high, wide and handsome early in the season. Murray Armentrout, varsity football captain, broke into the lineup and showed to fine advantage, despite the fact he has only been out for practice for a week. His passing was accurate and hard and his thinking up to snuff.

Just when the Tartan barrage in the final moments was the heaviest, a young Wash-Jeff sub, Bill Thompson, was inserted into the fray and the first thing he did was to cause Coach Bill Amos to fall off the bench by taking a pot-shot at the Tech basket. The lineup:

Carnegie Tech		W. & J.

COUNTY LINKS FEES SET

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

The County Commissioners, Joseph G. Armstrong, E. V. Babcock and Charles McGovern, yesterday officially ratified fees for the Allegheny County Park golf courses. As the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph anticipated several weeks ago, the County Commissioners decided upon an annual fee of $10, with the permit good at both the North and South Park links, and a junior permit, for minors 18 years of age and under, of $5.

Locker-room space will be more or less at a premium this year, due to strained temporary quarters, but the price will be the same this season as always—$5.

Transients may play for a green fee of $1.

All permit-holders must hold tax receipts, and junior permit holders must show parents' or guardians' tax receipts.

The fees authorized were recommended by Director of County Parks Paul B. Riis and City Office Manager for County Parks John Jay Burke.

KANSAS CITY SIGNS SUSCE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

George Susce, of Oakland, former Schenley High School catcher and grid star at Bellefonte Academy and St. Bonaventure College, today signed a contract to catch for the Kansas City club of the American Association.

The sturdy athlete from Oakland caught almost 50 games for the Blues last season. He batted better than .300 and in a general way made a favorable impression. Frank (Bull) Brown, of this city, who umpires in the American Association, feels that Susce has a bright future. He is a hustler, a smart receiver and is possessed of an exceptional arm.

Leo Mackey, local basketball and football official, who managed Chambersburg, of the Blue Ridge League, last season, has been signed to manage the Cumberland Club, of the Middle Atlantic League.

Building Up Big Fights

By IKE DORGAN, The Man Behind Tex Rickard's Fistic Ballyhoos.

CHAPTER XXVII

No source had [illegible] gathered in the handsome profits of his Willard and Motion fight that he got that yen to hop away to the Argentine again. It is the one thing in his life that he stuck to for [illegible], aside from his boxing ventures. He seemed to think that his megatonic ego lay there. Had Fate not decreed otherwise, I daresay Rickard would have ended his days in the quest for a fortune among the cattlemen of that region.

Jack Dempsey.

He paid us off for the fight in smacking big bills. Just to tease us, I suppose, Tex handed us $10,000 bills. The stakeholder, Dave Lewishon, of Chicago, a friend, was holding the money, SIX $10,000 BILLS, and he became so flustered with the importance of his responsibility that he pinned the six bills to the inside of one of his socks with a safety-blanket pin. If anyone had come along and accidentally touched Dave on the ankle, he would have dropped dead with heart disease. Jess got four of the bills, Moran two of them. We had been paid the differ-

LIGHT CARD ON TAP FOR TONIGHT

By JULIUS LEVIN

Dr. Lebowitz's Monessen Knights of Pythias basketball team will be out to strengthen its hold on first place in the Wagner Tri-County League tonight when it invades Wellsburg for the only league game on the schedule.

The Monessen passers, including in their lineup several former high school stars, are setting the pace in this fast circuit with four victories and one defeat.

While the Allegheny County and West Penn leagues both remain inactive tonight, local followers of basketball will not be without good attractions. The Catholic Foresters, sponsored by Johnny Fundy, former A. E. F. champion, who hails from Lawrenceville, oppose the Ambridge passers at Ambridge in a Greater Pittsburgh League game while Homewood invades North Boroughs for a Wagner Institutional League fray.

Two games are slated for the followers of the Catholic Lyceum. St. Wendelin playing at St. John and St. James at St. Cassimir.

The Y. M. H. A. Varsity B quintet, stopped by the Howard Francis five of Heinz House last Thursday night, attempts to start another winning streak at the expense of the Rawling's Collegians in Canonsburg.

The Lafayettes strengthened their berth at the top of the County League by beating Ellwood City, 42-39, last night. Penn Five tripped the Bucks, 41-21, and the Knickers beat the St. Michael's passers, 37-13, in the West Penn circuit.

Swissvale copped from Monongahela, 35-29, in the Tri-County loop and Wilson Bluejays bumped Smithfield E. P., 42-25.

Shots and Passes

The Pitcairn basketball team will entertain the Jeannette Reders of the Allegheny County League next Saturday night in Pitcairn. The Pitcairn team was forced to call off its engagement with the Altoona Red Men. The following Saturday, Pitcairn plays the Duquesne Lafayettes, also of the County League.

The D. C. Rodgers five of Slippery Rock will meet the Pennsylvania Indemnity Club at Mt. Lebanon High School next Monday night. The Rodgers lineup has been bolstered by the addition of several Slippery Rock passers.

The Cleveland Pennzoils, who meet the Y. M. H. A. in a return game at the Y. M. H. A. tomorrow night, will engage the Penn Five of the West Penn League, in Slippery Rock Saturday night.

Followers of the West Penn League are awaiting with keen interest the battle tomorrow night between the Kay Schneiders and the Community House passers at North Side Moose Hall. The two clubs have been rivals all season.

Tech to Send Team To W. Va. Track Meet

Carnegie Tech will send eight men to West Virginia University's indoor track and field gala at Morgantown Saturday. The squad will be headed by Capt. Ray Barger, pole vaulter.

Three Tech men will be entered in the dashes—Hower, Herbst and Sigmund. Sigmund and Hower are also to essay the broad jump. Jess Price, captain of the cross-country team, will run the two miles.

PASSAIC, NEW JERSEY.

JOHN N. RYAN, M.D.
HEALTH OFFICER

May 21, 1930

American Cigar Company,

New York City.

Dear Sirs:

I want the cigar smoking public to be made conscious of the danger to health involved in any unsanitary methods of manufacture. "Spit-tipping" is disgusting and unhealthy. It will go when the public realizes it exists, and it is such a campaign as yours which will bring the public to this realization.

I commend your campaign heartily and wish you well. I have no objection to your publication of this letter, over my signature, if it will help in the good work.

Very Truly Yours,
John N. Ryan
John N. Ryan,
Health Officer, City of Passaic.

...one of 56 health officials from 56 different points approving Cremo's crusade against spit or spit-tipping.

Every smoker, every wife whose husband smokes cigars, should read Dr. Ryan's letter.

"Who are the friends of 'Spit'?"

YOU MAY WELL ASK THIS QUESTION WHEN 56 IMPORTANT HEALTH OFFICIALS HAVE WRITTEN SO STRONGLY AGAINST THE EVILS OF SPIT OR SPIT-TIPPING.

Dr. Ryan writes: "'Spit-tipping' is disgusting and unhealthy."

The war against spit is a crusade of decency. Join it...Smoke Certified Cremo—a really wonderful smoke—mild—mellow—nut-sweet! Every leaf entering the clean, sunny Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture.

In this period of cold weather and cracked lips, above all insist on a cigar—free of the spit germ.

Allegheny kept its place at the top of Section 2, and Fifth Avenue, the defending champion, took it on the chin in Section 1, Connelley Trade beating the Downtowners in the City League's big surprise of yesterday. Allegheny bumped Allegheny Vocational, 40-19, while Connelley whipped Fifth Avenue High, 26-18.

In other Section 1 affrays, South High nosed out Peabody, 31-29, and Schenley set down Allderdice, 30-22.

Langley High scored the unexpected by soundly trouncing South Hills, 30-26, and Perry defeated Carrick, 34-23, in other Group II games.

NEW BRIGHTON WINS

Most interest in scholastic basketball yesterday was centered in W. P. I. A. L. battles.

New Brighton High defeated Beaver, 26-12; Swissvale swamped Aspinwall, 31-17; Etna knocked off Edgewood, 30-9; New Kensington beat Freeport, 32-15; Freedom bowed to Aliquippa, 46-22, and Monessen whipped Monongahela, 40-18, in the more important tilts.

JACKETS TOP INDIANS, 1-0

the start of the second period until the finish.

A capacity crowd, glorying in the Jackets' first victory over the defending champions, appeared to enjoy the locals' safety-first tactics. The fans cheered lustily every time the puck was slammed to the Cleveland end of the arena, forcing the visitors to skate back and reorganize their attack.

FAIL TO TALLY

Cleveland had five good scoring opportunities, three at the start of the second period, and two in the early minutes of the final stanza. In the second period Dame Fortune frowned on Brophy when his hot shot hit the Pittsburgh goal post, and a moment later Fraser swept the puck from beneath Doraty's stick as the latter skated in on top of Cox. Gray missed by a matter of inches early in the last canto when the Jacket forwards stood by and permitted him to carry the disc around the Pittsburgh cage and out in front of the local goalie.

Duke McCurry won much applause for the manner in which he guarded Ken Doraty, the Indians' scoring ace. He stuck to the league's leading goal getter like a leech throughout the fray.

In winning Pittsburgh reduced Cleveland's lead to a game and a half. The Jackets are to play in London tomorrow and the Tecumsehs are to come here Saturday. Victories in their next two games, therefore, may give the locals undisputed possession of a place high enough to get 'em into the title play-off series. The lineup:

Pittsburgh (4)		Cleveland (1)
Cox	G	Woode
Fraser	D	Young
Fuller	D	McFarlane
Rodden	C	Gray
McCurry	W	Clark
Greer	W	Doraty

Subs—Pittsburgh, McGinnis, Onslette, Fields, Promisel, Hallida; White, McJarrow, Meyer, Cleveland, Frew, Dunning, Brophy, McBride, Williams, Briden.

Referee—Hughes.

First period—Pittsburgh, Halliday (McJarrow), (5-45). Penalty—Young.

Second period—No scoring. Penalties—Onslette, Doraty, Briden.

Third period—No scoring. Penalty—Rodden.

GROGAN DEFEATED

RODGERS MAY BOX DATTO THIRD TIME

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Local boxing fans have been discussing pro and con Jackie Rodgers' failure to knock out Johnny Datto when he had him on the verge in the second and fourth rounds of their return battle at Motor Square Garden Monday night, with the result that in the end he lost the decision.

There are those who are prone to criticize Rodgers' strategy of coasting through the third round and then lying back again in the fifth to rest up after his two splurges, believing he could have finished the job if he had carried on only a little longer in each instance with his pressing attack instead of going close and mauling and giving Datto a chance to recover along with him. Datto rallied and outlasted Jackie, sweeping the last five rounds to add them to his edges in the first and third and win the fight.

PLENTY OF FIREWORKS

In view of the fireworks that were set off in the two Rodgers-Datto bouts, Datto having floored Rodgers four times in the second round of the first bout and then failed to finish him, although he also won that decision, a third pairing between the two is not unlikely. It may not come before the end of the indoor season, but, if it doesn't, it will save up very well for a strong outdoor attraction at the Meyers Bowl in Braddock.

So great was the demand for tickets for the Garden show on Monday that it was necessary to shut off the sale of standing room before the first bout got under way. Since all of the $2 tickets also had been sold, nothing was left but $3 pasteboards and finally these also were disposed of. During the bouts, a window on the Beatty street side of the arena was crashed in by an irate fan who was unable to buy a $1 ticket. When the ushers were dispatched to take up a collection for the family of the late Bob Cranshaw, Negro boxer, who died on Sunday from injuries suffered in a bout at the Moose Temple a week before, some of the standees strolled about in the aisles, giving the impression of greater congestion than really was the case.

DEATH PROBE ORDERED

Further collections will be taken up at the Moose Temple and at a show in Erie Friday night to help defray the shipping and burial expenses of Cranshaw, whose half-brother, Paul Smith, is here to take the body back to Columbus, O., the aged father and mother of the dead youth being unable to make the trip here. The mother is 58 years old and father 72, Smith is 48. The family home is at 580 E. Long street, Columbus.

An open investigation has been ordered by Coroner William J. McGregor into the death of Cranshaw in an attempt to place the responsibility. Subpoenas will be served on boxing commission and the Moose Club officials, his opponent, Marty Gornick, and others. The probe will be conducted next week.

Between Rounds

More than 100 boxers are entered in the Golden Gloves amateur tournament which gets under way in the Palisades Rink, McKeesport tonight, and will be concluded tomorrow or Friday night, depending on the progress made in the eliminations. Women will be admitted free to the bouts. Promoter Jim McGirr will go back to the professional sport Thursday night of next week.

Johnny Yelonosky, junior heavyweight champion of the Allegheny Mountain Association of the A. A. U., who won that title by beating Sparky Kwalt after the latter had knocked out George Petrone in the recent tournament at the Keystone A. C., has been substituted as Pirrone's opponent in the main bout of a show to be held by the H. T. Little Club in Sokol Hall, Bloomfield, Friday night. Kwalt is injured and cannot appear.

Buddy Stewart, formerly of Canton, O., now of the Homewood A. C., who meets Jim Berman, North Side Negro welterweight, in the opening bout at the Moose Temple Friday night, is the boxer who opposed Jimmy Belnoski, of Braddock, in the main bout of a show at Aliquippa on Christmas afternoon. The closing of this bout rounds out Promoter Apples Meyers' card. He has Billy Rose, of Cincinnati, in with Billy Bolt, Negro welterweight, of Homewood, in the 10-round main bout, Al Ghan against Hal Murray in the semi-final and Jimmy Reilly against Sammy Burns in the second event.

Patsy Brannigan, who made such a hit in his appearance against Chicky Wenler on Father Cox's benefit card at the Moose Temple last week, has consented to donate his services for another worthy show and will oppose Eddie Santry, another local-time boxer, in an exhibition bout to top off the show to be held in the Penn Armory Friday night to raise funds for the needy of the Lincoln avenue district. The Linwood Club is staging the affair. The judges will be Police Magistrate J. J. O'Connor and Traffic Court Magistrate William Soect. Magistrate Charles Papale will act as timer.

The Benny Touchstone-K. O. Simms bout, scheduled for Detroit tonight, has been postponed one week because of an injury to Simms. If he wins this battle, Touchstone will be matched with King Levinsky for March 6, which means he may not return to this section for some time, although his services are in demand as a result of his recent fine showing in McKeesport.

Twelve bouts will make up the program for the benefit boxing show for the unemployed of the Thirteenth Ward, to be held under the auspices of the Homewood-Brushton Rooters Club and the Thirteenth Ward Regular Republican Organization in the Moose Temple, one week from next Tuesday.

MORGAN MEETS CLEVELAND SUNDAY

By TOM BIRKS.

Secretary Pat Donohue, of the West Penn Football Association, has announced that the semi-final round of the cup play featuring Dunlevy and Cecil will be played at the Brideville Speedway Saturday afternoon.

Managers Kunkle and George Grandy immediately will prepare for this encounter. It appears trouble was encountered in setting the game slated for Sunday.

Nearly all of the teams in the district fight hard to get into the semi-final and final round of this competition, because that is where the money comes in to balance a lean season.

Morgan will make the trip to Cleveland Sunday afternoon to meet the Shamrocks in a replay of a first round game in the national challenge cup. Reports from the Forest City state that all games in the Forest City for that day have been called off and that the locals and the Shamrocks will have the day to themselves.

Gallatin will play a picked all-star team from the Mon-Yough League on Sunday at Blythesdale and the referee will be Potts. The all-star team follows: Borough, Elizabeth, Murphy, Victory Hill, Kolesz, FitzHenry, Lorenzi, Manown, Clark, Clarksville, Patterino, Clarksville; Prentice, Hermine, O'Neill, Hermine, Lancaster, FitzHenry, Nestor, Manown, Leuzi, Manown.

It is a benefit affair, and will be called at 3 p. m.

STOCK MARKET CONTINUES TO ASCEND

List Shows Improvement Fourth Successive Day; Copper Shares Strong

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—(AP.)—Wall street revelled in an old-fashioned bull market in shares in the fourth successive trading session today.

The mid-week business statistics were largely irrelevant to their implications, but the fact that they showed basic industries still able to offer strong resistance to depression was enough to maintain the carnival spirit among speculators.

That spirit did not require much in the way of positive developments, since it represented primarily a revision of the mental frame of mind inherited from the drastic adjustments of the final months of 1930.

The share market encountered a wave of profit-taking in the first half hour, and again in the early afternoon, but trading turned dull on declines and swelled to new record volume for the new year as the market advanced. Coppers and non-ferrous metals were strong in response to firmer metal prices.

The steel trade reviews stressed that ingot output had been increased from 45 to 50 per cent of capacity as talkies by motor manufacturers had increased. The tone of the reviews was constructive, however, and pointed out the fact that the industry might be expected to coast along through February without pronounced change, as it did last year, so that prices may not be thoroughly tested until March. The weekly freight car loading showed a slight gain, if anything larger than than seasonal trend would indicate.

In addition to copper, silver prices again rallied, reaching 27⅝ cents an ounce, up ⅛ of a cent. This may have been in response to the report of the Pittman committee of the Senate advocating formation of an international pool to make an advance of silver to China.

Reports that Westinghouse Electric was reducing its operations schedule from a six-day to a five-day week, and cutting wages 10 per cent, and that National Cash Register was reducing its operations to three days a week from five, were adverse features of the day's corporate news. Also, the weekly petroleum statistics were unfavorable, showing large gains in crude output and an addition of about 800,000 barrels to the stock of gasoline in storage, despite a reduction in refining operations.

Credit continued abundant with outside call money still at 1 per cent, indicating that the upward movement in shares had not required much in the way of borrowings, perhaps because much of it has been short covering.

Banks, Exchanges To Close for Holiday

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—All stock and commodity exchanges in the United States will be closed tomorrow, according to announcement of Federal Reserve Bank. The New York stock and Curb exchanges will be closed. Banks also will observe the holiday, as legislation was passed by the General Assembly of Pennsylvania and the Governor signed the bill. Federal Reserve Banks will be closed, and Saturday morning rule will prevail.

Wall Street Favorably Impressed by Steel Tonnage Report

Inside present frame of mind of the Street is at least that part of the speculative fraternity which is identified with the move for rising prices was disposed to place more emphasis on the increase of 18,350 tons in forward business reported by the Steel Corporation. Even allowing for the fact that plants operated at somewhat less than half actual capacity during the period, the gain in forward bookings was taken as an indication of some measure of expansion in consumer interest. Whether this is strong enough in the opinion of producers to serve as a basis for the rumored increase in steel prices remains to be seen. Last month's figures are computed with a gain of 30,960 tons in December.

Reporting member banks continued to pare down their loans against security collateral during the week ended February 4, the consolidated condition statement reveals. Such loans were reduced by $76,000,000 in the period, bringing the total contraction since the end of 1930 to $511,000,000. At the same times the investments of these institutions rose by $171,000,000, with the increase including a gain of $125,000,000 in holdings of United States government securities. Such holdings are now $631,000,000 in excess of the same date last year, while investments in miscellaneous securities, which increased by $46,000,000 for the week, stand $880,000,000 above the corresponding date last year. "Other" loans normally accepted as business borrowings were reduced by $9,000,000 and are $572,000,000 less than last year. Member banks are borrowing only $65,000,000 from the regional banks as against $173,000,000 this time a year ago.

Inasmuch as public participation is invariably largest in a rising market Wall street naturally leans more to bull markets than it does to bear markets. But all things considered, there is a limit to what the street considers health-giving in the way of an advancing share market. And in conservative quarters it was the belief that the present sensational advance was hitting a clip that is entirely too fast for either comfort or health. It appeared plain to such observers that even if some measure of outside buying is coming into stocks on the advance, the income that is lifting stocks is not of a character which might be expected to sustain the market once the bloom is off with the elimination of the short interest. In these quarters there seemed to be a feeling that the market might possibly be destined to repeat its performance of last spring.

Several authorities in the motor industry have expressed the opinion that the recent advance in Fuqua was justified because of the financial position of the company. The stock was affected by forced liquidation last year, and for a long time it was near its low. At the end of September last year net working capital was in excess of $15,000,000 and on the 2nd securities amounted to more than $11,000,000, of 1,242,892 shares are outstanding, so that the recent price was lower than warranted on the working capital and cash assets.

If [illegible] to show gradual improvement this year as so many [illegible] have reported, American Telephone and Telegraph might benefit. The business of the company depends to a great extent on general conditions. Naturally with so much unemployed economic [illegible] direction there would be a decrease of the telephone [illegible] present indications of the company [illegible] by small investors in odd lots. There will be [illegible] the week out of the [illegible] proved the feeling.

Southern Pacific and Louisville & Nashville, two of the railroads which [illegible] in most of the lists [illegible] good issues continue [illegible] the stocks increase [illegible] reduction and toward the use of [illegible] in the [illegible]

Life's Greatest Satisfaction: Eastman's View

By B. C. FORBES

WHAT GIVES [illegible] George [illegible] photo kit[illegible] the [illegible] life?

This [illegible] of [illegible] philanthropy [illegible]

B. C. Forbes

three [illegible] efficient [illegible] departments in America has done no end of wonderful things.

Yet, when I spoke to him this week about what had given him most satisfaction and fruitful life [illegible] what he said:

"What gives me the greatest satisfaction of all is to know that the Eastman Kodak organization is able to carry on without me."

I commented:

"Without you? I guess you still have your hand very much on the helm."

He answered:

"No. I really take very little part in the running of things. Other men are now carrying on. And you don't know what a satisfaction it is to me to realize that the business can function and prosper quite as well without me and that it will flourish after I am gone. That is a great joy to me, to know that what I helped to create and build has in it the elements of permanency, that it will continue to afford congenial and profitable employment to a great many people."

Mr. Eastman's emphatic statement recalled what John D. Rockefeller once told me when I asked him what had given him the greatest satisfaction of his whole life:

"Of course, I am grateful that the Lord has made it possible for me to do some things which have perhaps been helpful to humanity. But what has given me the greatest satisfaction of all is to have taken a part in creating a business organization which has afforded steady employment at good wages to a great many heads of families."

A sage once said:

"You must live before you can philosophize."

Both Eastman and Rockefeller, as you will see, feel that the most worthwhile thing in their life has been to play a part in making it possible for many thousands of men to earn a decent living for themselves and their families. Both have derived real joy from being philanthropists, but even above this joy they rank the satisfaction of having made it possible for a great many families to earn a respectable living.

INDICTMENTS ARE not convictions. Yet one of the most heartening things which has occurred in New York recently is the indictment yesterday of eight officers and directors of the closed Bank of United States.

"You can't imprison a million dollars," is a common cynical saying in this country. No Bank of United States officials have yet been placed behind prison bars. But the very fact that a grand jury has indicted them will go far to convince a skeptical public that an earnest effort is being made to punish alleged wrongdoers of wealth and position.

This column was the first to question publicly the honesty of the administration of the Bank of United States. Readers may recall that certain very pertinent questions were asked here. It was very plain to the writer that the institution could not have resorted to the creation of 57 varieties of "dummy" subsidiaries would not have made so many questionable loans, would not have had to close its doors.

Regardless of the final outcome of the indictment of the bank's chairman, president, vice president, counsel and others the vigorous steps taken cannot but have a salutary effect upon bankers who may be also indulging in the improper use of money entrusted to them by innocent depositors. There has been altogether too much evidence in this country that bankers have not properly realized that savings entrusted to them are not their own property to use or misuse as their inclination suggests.

Incidentally, there is urgent need for drastic change in the treatment of depositors when a bank fails. It is ridiculous, it is cruel, it is wholly unnecessary that depositors in a bank which loses should always have to wait months and months before they are able to obtain even one cent of their money. It is imperative that the examining authorities make it their business to ascertain the actual conditions and that provision be promptly made to pay out to depositors a reasonable part of their money.

Fixed Trusts Based on Common Plan

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

FIXED INVESTMENT TRUSTS form the only class of securities which have continued to move into the hands of investors in large volume during the past year in spite of disturbances in the markets for stocks and bonds. Their appeal is based on the advantages of diversification, simplification of inheritance tax problems, the belief that common stocks will increase in value during coming years and the fact that they do not carry with them the objectional features of the management trusts.

A list of highly rated common stocks with a good dividend record is selected. The fixed trusts are organized into units. Each unit contains a specified number of the shares of each of these companies. The stocks are placed in the hands of a trustee.

Against each of these units a specified number of shares is sold. Each of these shares represent a fractional participation in the ownership and the profits from the underlying stocks. Additional units are formed as the shares are sold. The trust indenture usually provides for the liquidation of the units by the sale of the underlying stocks within a certain term of years.

Earnings Distributed

THE EARNINGS FROM the underlying stocks are distributed by the trustee to the shareholders at definite periods. In most trusts these payments are made semi-annually. While the payments will vary, the shares usually have coupons attached to them. Collection is made by the presentation of these coupons instead of by the mailing of checks as in the case of other types of shares.

Except in a very minor way, management is entirely automatic. No substitution can be made in the list of underlying stocks. Under certain conditions these stocks may be sold but, in this event, the proceeds must be distributed to the shareholders. At the termination of the trusts the entire list of holdings is sold and all the proceeds are distributed.

Price Based On Market

THE PRICE OF THE shares in fixed trusts is determined each day by taking the value of the underlying stocks in a unit and then dividing by the number of shares in each unit. To this is added certain charges covering the cost of assembling the unit, trustees fees, profits for the houses making the distribution and other special charges differing with each trust.

Usually the holder of a sufficient number of shares can exchange his holdings for the underlying stocks at any time. If the number of shares is small they may be converted into the equivalent in cash. In most cases a market for fixed trust shares is maintained at half a point under the current sales price.

Distributions Differ

UP TO THIS point most of the fixed investment trusts are similar. But beyond this point a wide range of difference is found. In addition to cash dividends, the trustees for fixed investment trusts receive rights to buy additional stock, stock dividends and split-ups of stocks. In the methods of treating these various types of receipts lies one of the fundamental differences in fixed investment trusts. The handling of these receipts will be discussed tomorrow.

STEEL DEMAND STILL SPOTTY

The Iron Age in its weekly summary of the iron and steel trade will say:

Iron and steel demand remains spotty, but bookings as a whole have registered another slight gain. Steel ingot output has made further advances at Chicago, Youngstown and in the East, and for the country at large now averages 50 per cent, compared with 48 per cent of capacity a week ago.

Irregularities in the flow of tonnage introduce operating difficulties and make the entire market situation confusing, but a uniform trend is hardly to be expected at this time, in view of the subnormal state of general business, the pronounced caution now restraining all enterprise and the ebb and flow of seasonal influences.

The gain of 10 per cent in the rate of raw steel output in January reflected both a recovery from industrial suspensions in the latter part of December and a seasonal upswing in production of rails, track supplies and tin plate, supplemented by an improvement in line pipe business. A much smaller increase in activity is looked for this month, since the full force of spring demand is not felt until March, and this year is being anticipated less than usual.

Orders from the automobile, agricultural equipment, road machinery and machine tool manufacturers are gradually increasing, but give no definite indication of the volume they may attain in the next month or two. Financing difficulties are delaying the placing of private structural work, as well as pipe line programs. On the other hand, public undertakings are being pushed as rapidly as possible to the "pick and shovel" stage.

The Iron Age composite price for pig iron has reached slightly from $15.90 to $15.88 a gross ton, the lowest figure since November, 1915. The finished steel composite is unchanged at 2.142c a pound.

Connie and Duke See Note Under Jim's Door

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Connie Calvert shares her home and fortune with her half-sister, Kitty, whom she found destitute in New York's underworld. Kitty falls in love with Jim Tracy, Connie's former fiance. Believing Jim to be a fortune-hunter, Connie, to save Kitty, enlists the aid of Duke Garson, Kitty's friend and underworld intelligence man. He warns Connie that her butler is a crook and that her mother should guard her pearls. Later, Duke is about to declare his love for Connie when Jim appears. He claims he was held up and is afraid to go home. Connie invites him to stay. Duke doubts Jim's story. That night, Mrs. Calvert's pearls are stolen. Duke questions the maid about them. The maid doubts Kitty's honesty. Mrs. Calvert becomes ill after the excitement. Duke accuses Jim of lying about being held up. Jim says he lied because he did not trust Duke and wanted to get back to the Calvert home. Connie tells her mother that she is not sure whether she loves Duke. Duke seeks the butler's aid to solve the robbery mystery. The butler suspects the maid. While out riding with Connie, Duke says she is a new thrill in his life. When he kisses her she is powerless to resist. Late that night Connie is alarmed when she hears a noise in the house. She summons Duke and he discovers the maid hiding in a closet. She refuses to give an explanation.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER LVII.

"Don't, don't cry—please don't," she pleaded. "Nobody wants to do you any harm—we just want to get at the truth."

Mary Smith moved her head and took her hands from her face, which was wet with tears. "You got to give me time to think. You take a body and frighten her to death, then expect her to talk sense—it ain't possible. If you didn't have me helpless you wouldn't dare ding-dong after me this way." Her eyes, despite their wetness, flashed at Garson. "You talk about sending me to the penitiary and frightening a body 'eath. I want to go upstairs to my room."

Refuses to Tell

Connie and Garson exchanged glances. If they let her have time to recover her spirit, to concoct some plausible story the present advantage, of course, would be lost; yet, there was, too, the chance that a night's reflection might produce in the morning a truthful and careful story. Beyond doubt Mary Smith was freeing her resistance by a violence that was beginning to burn out.

"If you tell us what is on your mind now, Mary," Connie said to her, a hint of gentleness, "your conscience will be clear and you can sleep in peace. We're all excited and you can straighten everything up if only you will."

"I suppose you mean to be kind," Mary Smith said, "but I'll be driven so far and no farther. You let me alone tonight and I'll tell you everything I know in the morning."

"The only difference with that is that you may not be here in the morning. What's to prevent you from slipping away as soon as our backs are turned? We're not idle curiosity seekers—a valuable string of pearls is involved in this. You don't think the police would give you a chance to get away as long as the pearls are missing, do you?"

She looked straight at Garson, trapped, baited. "I won't run away. You can lock my door and put the key in your pocket. I want to be by myself."

Connie, with a quick nod of her head, signaled Garson to accept this proposition. Here was a gentleness, a diplomacy that clashed with his hardheadedness. Yet after all this was Connie's house and her problem. Left to himself he would have attempted to force at almost any cost the truth from Mary Smith, but he shrugged and yielded. Locked in her own room there would be little chance of Mary Smith getting away, the danger was she might think of some tragedy to succumb.

"All right," he agreed, "but I'm going to fix the door myself. We're not going to take any chances with you, my girl."

Together the three of them went to the top floor and to Mary Smith's room with its sloping ceiling. Garson looked out three windows, no escape was possible that way, barring a 50-foot drop to the ground. The door and lock were sturdy. Turning the key, he dropped it into the pocket of his robe and with Connie descended the stairs. They were both widely, completely awake.

"I don't feel as though I could sleep a wink tonight," Connie said.

"Same here." Garson returned. "I can't see that we are much better off right now than before—if anything—the mystery has deepened. Tomorrow we won't know any more than we do tonight."

"What time is it?"

He looked at the dial of his wrist watch. "Just 2 o'clock. I've had some sleep, and I feel all pepped up. If you don't mind I think I'll dress and go downstairs to the library for the rest of the night. When something keys me up I never have the patience to stay in bed."

The truth was, Connie's feelings were identical; in a house where so much had happened, she had no hesitancy in adding another outer touch.

See Note Under Door

"And if you don't mind," she remarked, "I'd like to get into some respectable clothes and join you. I'll make some coffee and we'll have sandwiches. I'd like to—unless you want to be alone."

A knife-like affection for Duke Garson stirred Connie; she could imagine nothing pleasanter than the isolation, the secretive adventure of staying awake with him throughout the night. It gave her a gentleness for him. Always, forever, he would be sweet to her.

Her hand, she found, was nestling in Garson's. Together they walked down the hall toward their rooms. Garson's was the far one on the left, Connie's at a shorter distance on the right. The room almost directly across from Connie's was occupied by Jim Tracy. Simultaneously, they saw under Tracy's door the corner of a folded piece of paper. An inch of it possibly was visible. It was as though the missive had been thrust under from the outside. They both stopped dead still.

Garson's face clouded. "Who?"

"Maybe Kitty—"

"Why should she write him notes when she has every opportunity to talk to him for hours on end?" he asked skeptically. "No, I think most likely we've solved Mary Smith's mission down here in the hall tonight. She wanted to communicate with Tracy—it was too dangerous to knock on his door loud enough to wake him. Unfortunately she didn't put it inside quite far enough. Yes, I think the solution to everything that's been puzzling us is right in our hands now. All that's needed is to bend over and slip the piece of paper out."

"But—"

"I know—it's not a gentlemanly thing to do; it looks like eavesdropping, or opening other people's letters. As it happens, I think the circumstances warrant a little trickery. When you're dealing with dishonesty it's sometimes necessary to put a few scruples in your pocket. I'm going to see what is in that note to Tracy."

DAILY TRUE STORY — Lollipops

One would think, from general and promiscuous reading, that the great West was not one area of paved streets, electrically lighted; that the only longhorns one saw were in front halls serving as hat racks, and that the only remaining great open spaces were football fields and tennis courts.

"The West is no more," "The days of cattle punching have gone," and so on, according to many lecturers and many more alleged informative articles in the prints.

Stella Marvin wouldn't believe this.

Stella had been born down in Texas and she was 16 before she traveled north by east, ultimately landing in a three-room flat as Mrs. Stella Jones, and in the Mastadon candy factory as an employe.

When Stella had doubled 16 she was still an employe in the candy factory.

Her husband had put in most of those last 16 years looking for suitable employment. On several occasions he almost found it, but investigation disclosed that there was labor connected with it, so that let him out.

Finally a truck skidded over the curb and smacked Mr. Jones into eternal rest.

The owners of the truck investigated. They consulted with Stella's lawyer and they paid funeral expenses, twelve hundred cash, to Stella, and settled with her lawyer.

Stella accepted the money in a daze. She knew mighty well that the loss of Mr. Jones had not damaged her that much. In fact—but she let it rest there. She had always blamed herself for marrying Jones.

"Now, Stella," advised Mrs. Schultz, her landlady, "you go put that right in a building and loan; they ain't ever bustin' up and they pay 5 per cent. You'll have a little extra income and you'll be easy in mind knowing you'll get a nice burial."

Starts on Vacation

"Listen, Mrs. Schultz. By the time I'm ready for burial I won't be interested at all in it."

"Ach! You going to blow it foolish?"

"I'm going to have me a six-month vacation!"

And so Stella gave up her little apartment, bought a car that was sturdy rather than gaudy, learned how to drive it within a week, secured ample road maps and set forth.

Stella wasn't going to see anyone. There were no relatives left, which was why she headed North, ran into matrimony and 16 years of drudgery in a candy factory. She was just going to see Texas as she remembered it—the plains, the billowy slopes, the thick mesquite grass over which horses' hoofs sounded as though they were padded. She remembered the coming and departing of the sun over that landscape, and the wind-flowers and blue skies.

When she reached the Middle Concho River district she felt "that she was almost home."

And when she arrived at Ganley she was quite at home.

Stella put up at a hotel and drove about the country, perfectly happy.

The weeks slipped along faster than Stella realized. It was getting time to think of driving back. She hated to think of it.

She used to stop, while watching the cattle herded and loaded, and get cold soft drinks at the "Herdsmen's Rest." The usual stuff was sold there, smokes, gum, candy bars, even lollipops and chocolates, for the cowpuncher has a mighty sweet tooth.

Mr. Babson Watson owned this little place. He was from the East. Stella charmed him. But he didn't charm Stella by a million miles. He made his first mistake by praising the state of Ohio and belittling Texas. Stella advised him to go back to Ohio—if the authorities didn't object.

This was a bull's-eye, although Stella didn't guess it.

Meanwhile the six months had passed. Stella was still living modestly at Ganley and enjoying the living most riotously. But her finances were getting short.

Buys Business

By this time a lot of the cowpunchers who came in with herds had got to know Stella well enough to know that she was the real thing in the lady line. And they liked her.

One day when Babson Watson was trying to tell Stella, in a diplomatic manner, that she was a fool not to marry him, Stella had an idea.

"Watson, why don't you sell me this outfit of yours and go to some other place where some other Stella will not be so stupid as I am, but will marry you instantly?"

"You mean—"

"I mean I wouldn't marry you on a billion dollar bet, but I will buy you out."

"I'd have to get three hundred for this, stock and good will and the buildin'—"

"You've sold it," Stella said. And he had.

Stella painted it herself, white with green trim. She made trellises and set out vines and roses. She fixed up a combination private kitchen, dining room and bedroom for herself in the rear and, having ideas, she painted an old toy wagon on both sides:

"THE CHUCK WAGON"

and suspended it for a sign.

When Stella objected Watson pointed out that he had signed nothing that bound him to go or prevented him from opening up in competition.

"Marry me and we'll consolidate," he suggested.

Peddie Lacey and Rance Willets, as well as probably a dozen others of the cow punchers, offered to remove him from the town or even from the land of the living, if she said so, but Stella wouldn't listen to that.

Babson laid himself out to get in a better and more attractive stock. He painted his new place blue and pink, and it could be seen for miles. He shaved prices on smokes and things. But he laid himself out especially on candies, knowing the cowboy's sweet tooth.

Stella grinned. She knew more about candies than Babson ever dreamed possible. She sent directly to the Mastadon for certain supplies, some of made-up candies and some of candy-making materials.

Rance Willets had taken Stella into his confidence about how soon it would be before he could buy the ranch from his fast-aging boss. In return Stella took him into confidence about some of her plans.

They shook hands.

Stella specialized in large red lollipops.

She made them herself in her back room. She made other candies.

But her lollipops, named "Sweethearts," were the favorite. Their fame spread. Stella had to get a girl to help tend counter, her lollipop making took so much time.

They were large lollipops. But Babson put in larger ones, and redder ones. He sold his for a quarter each. Stella got a half dollar for hers, not over a dozen to a customer.

Asks About Stella

Naturally, stopping at Stella's "Chuck Wagon" for her sweetheart lollipops, the boys bought their smokes and soda pop there until finally Babson Watson quit in disgust and moved down to the San Saba district.

Peddie Lacey saw him down there a year later. He seemed eager for news of Stella.

"Oh, she married Rance Willets a few months ago. It seems his boss didn't have chick or child, so he left his ranch to Rance," Peddie explained.

"One thing I never could understand—why all you fools hung around her and paid her 50 cents for her lollipops when I sold bigger ones for a quarter," Babson complained.

"Well, say, guess I can explain that now, seein' she is out of the lollipop business," Peddie said. "You see, that Stella woman, she made her lollipops all holler and filled 'em with a shot of good rye, then sealed 'em—Rance got th' rye for her."

"Fill—she well, I'll be—of all the——"

Peddie rode away, leaving Babson Watson still struggling to express himself.

The suspicion that Succop will be ... of the evidence presented against him will be strengthened if the inquiry is conducted secretly.

There is no reason why star chamber sessions should be held. It is not the grand jury that is investigating.

The Mayor owes it to the public to conduct open hearings. Let the taxpayers know the facts. They are deeply concerned. If it is true, as charged, that one of their servants has been unfaithful to his trust and has been squandering their money they have a right to know it. If the accusation is untrue and Succop has been slandered, they have a right to know that too. They have a right to know the evidence upon which the charge, whatever it may be, is based.

A Meritorious Bill

Senator Brandt's Measure Would Make It Less Easy for Public Utilities to Impose on Public.

Industrial and private customers of public utilities may be saved millions of dollars in the future if the bill presented by State Senator Herman Brandt, of Allegheny County, is passed.

Senator Brandt's bill would prevent public utilities from putting increased rates into effect until after a public hearing has been held and the change has been approved by the Public Service Commission.

Under the existing law it is merely necessary for the utilities to file a notice of the increase. Study and approval of the change by the Public Service Commission are not necessary. In order to prevent an increase it is necessary for a consumer to file a formal complaint and then to go through the tedious process of a legal battle before the commission. Such a step is possible for a large corporation, but almost impossible for an individual.

An example of the unfairness of the present law is found in the case on freight rates on short hauls of steel products in the Pittsburgh district. On May 20 the railroads announced new rates which in many cases doubled previous charges. In other states the commissions temporarily set aside the increases while they investigate the merits of the increases. Industries of other states have never been compelled to pay the higher rates. In this state the commission had no authority to temporarily set aside the new rates. The case is still before the commission and Pittsburgh industry is being burdened with the increased charges.

Senator Brandt's bill would automatically prevent any such injustice to this district and would force the commission to investigate every rate increase.

State Farm Output

Importance of Agriculture is Not to be Overlooked in Considering Pennsylvania's Resources.

The agricultural statisticians have completed their studies of last year's crops. Pennsylvania's rank in comparison with other states has just been published. It is a record that is worth the citizens' attention.

We stood first in production of cigar-filler tobacco, second in buckwheat, fourth in potatoes (second in value), fourth in apples (third in value), ninth in maple products and grapes, sixth in tame hay (second in value), sixth in pears, seventh in rye, eighth in winter wheat and peaches, fourteenth in oats, nineteenth in corn, and twenty-first in barley.

Pennsylvania is not only a manufacturing and mining state—it is emphatically an agricultural state. People doing business in Pennsylvania who overlook the farms and farmers make a great mistake.

Partisanship Unwanted

Chairman of Republican National Committee Should Not Be on Washington Bi-Centennial Commission.

If there is one federal commission in existence today which the public has a right to demand shall be free from all partisan influence it is the George Washington Bi-Centennial Commission.

Fortunately the attempt to land a $10,000 job with this commission for a lame-duck Congressman has been blocked by the opposition of Senator Norris, of Nebraska, following the public protest voiced by the Hearst newspapers.

Senator Norris served notice that he would oppose any further appropriations for the commission unless he could be assured that Representative Cramton, of Michigan, would not be hired as an associate director. Then the commission quickly decided to do without the services of Michigan's "lame-duck" Congressman.

But the chairman of the Republican National Committee is vice chairman and acting head of the commission—Senator Fess, of Ohio.

When the Ohio Senator was appointed to the commission he was supposed to represent the Committee on Foreign Relations. He was not then chairman of his party's national committee.

There are other members of the Committee on Foreign Relations equally well qualified to supervise the arrangements for celebrating the two hundredth anniversary of George Washington's birth than Senator Fess, of Ohio.

Furthermore, as chairman of his party's national committee, Senator Fess is in charge of the Republican party's plans for the presidential campaign of 1932.

No chairman of a national committee in charge of the presidential campaign of his party ought to be in charge of the bi-centennial celebration.

Now is the time for Senators and Representatives in Congress to insist that the celebration of this great patriotic event shall be under auspices untainted by partisanship.

Senator Fess is a man of judgment and refinement and will doubtless himself see the necessity of either resigning from the vice chairmanship of the Bi-Centennial Commission or giving up the chairmanship of the Republican National Committee.

The Dud

By Nelson Harding

From official Washington
Came the shot that looked so deadly

And now everyone concerned,
With profound relief is sighing.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Mrs. Solomon Says—

My Daughter, hear now the Commandments For the Fat.

* * *

For she that would be sylph-like and sigheth after slenderness, must suffer.

* * *

Thou shalt not look upon the spaghetti when it is red, neither upon the potato when it is white. For she that eateth thereof breaketh the first law of girth-control.

* * *

Thou shalt not glorify the palate, but shall spend all the days of thy life in the counting of thy calories and the measuring of thy vitamins. And the scraping of sauces and whipped cream from off thy food shall make bitter thy fudge-luncheons.

Thou shalt not take comfort in thy bed, neither in thy dreams. For to toss upon the pillow maketh the insomniac a perfect thirty-six; but to lie peacefully amid feathers after ten o'clock is to court obesity.

* * *

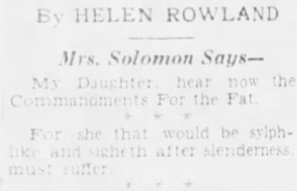
Thou shalt not be CHEERFUL. For a tantrum a day keepeth the fat away, but serenity of spirit menaceth the waistline. And when the smile cometh not off, the flesh cometh ON.

* * *

Thou shalt not REST, but shalt greet the morning sun with the swinging of dumb-bells and the deadly dozen and the moaning of the reducing belt.

* * *

Thou shalt not yearn after cushioned motor cars, neither succumb to the temptations of taxi-cabs, but wheresoever thou goest, let thy two feet carry thee.



Thou shalt not be happily married. For peace of mind and contentment of heart are the friends of embonpoint. But unrequited love and marital infelicity are more potent than reducing pills!

* * *

Verily, all this sacrifice, my daughter, thy reward shall be a symmetrical figure, a soul tempered to stern heroics and a withered heart!

* * *

For the way of the banter is easier than a racketeer's conscience and more full of exercise than a January bargain sale. But you FRANKLY FAT shall inherit the earth and all the joy and pleasure thereof!

Diesel, Giant of Machine Age

By Archibald Henderson

This is the age of the machine, and a machine which has often been cited as typical of the age is the Diesel engine. Henry Ford insists on calling this the power age, rather than the machine age. He insists that the engines constructed by man are not injurious to the race, but primarily serve the purpose of relieving mankind of the heavy burden of work which was formerly his lot. The Diesel engine is an outstanding example of the tool which reaches a high stage of efficiency and has a very productive value as a prime mover in modern industry.

Some inventors are so prolific in ideas that they are constantly hitting upon new inventions and making contributions to the world's conveniences, comfort and welfare. Others are obsessed with a single great idea, and devote their lives to the accomplishment of one great end, which they see clearly in outline but not in detail from the beginning.

They are willing to give themselves, their lives, their fortunes to a single great aim, satisfied if they can accomplish this and this only. To the latter class belong Rudolph Diesel, the inventor of the new oil engine, so famous today.

This devoted and gifted inventor was born of German parents in Paris on March 18, 1858. At the time of the Franco-Prussian War his parents emigrated to England, but the boy had already studied to some extent before leaving Paris. It was not, however, until he went to Augsburg, Germany, that he began to display his brilliant talents as an inventor. He passed his school examinations with unusual distinction.

Impressed by the ability of the young man, Prof. Linde persuaded him to devote his principal attention to the study of thermo-dynamics. This subject, which deals with the relations between heat and work, had a dominating influence upon his life and career.

Prof. Linde was so impressed by young Diesel's talent that he made him an assistant. For a time Diesel entered actively upon the task of assisting Linde in the development of refrigerating machinery, in a plant he had constructed for producing extreme degrees of cold.

It is by this means, for example, that liquid air is produced. After studying engineering and working for a short time in the machine shop of Sulzer Brothers, in Winterthin, Switzerland, Diesel went to Paris as the head of the company organized there for constructing Linde's refrigerators.

Diesel had carried over from his studies at Augsburg the idea of inventing a prime mover with a much higher heat-efficiency than that possessed by the steam engine. To this end, he resolved to devote all his efforts. At the age of 35 he succeeded in bringing his invention to the required degree of perfection.

In the Diesel engine, the vaporized fuel is not exploded in order to produce the working energy; it is merely burned.

No ignition device is used; and combustion is obtained by admitting a charge of air into the cylinder, and then compressing it with the return stroke of the piston until it becomes hot. The excessively hot air sets alight the charge of vaporized oil or tar which is next injected into the cylinder by an automatic pump. The Diesel engine, for driving machines on land is one of the most successful and popular of prime movers.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

You hate to make mistakes. You think that life will be wonderful some day, when you've learned not to make them. It won't.

You'll never learn not to make mistakes.

And nothing worse could happen to you than to never make mistakes. For mistakes are part of all healthy life. If you grow—if you take chances and make experiments, as all growing things must do—you're bound to make one mistake after another. If you refuse to take chances and make experiments—why that's the biggest mistake of all, for that's a refusal to live.

"But some people never make mistakes," you say. "They seem just perfect—"

Yes indeed! And honest, now have you ever liked a "perfect person?" Don't you secretly detest them and avoid them whenever possible? Of course you do—and for a very good reason. You dislike "perfect people" because they're not warm and human. They're not warm and human—they're not really alive. Life doesn't move in them as it should, rippling, splashing, breaking down banks, making puddles—making mistakes. They're stagnant.

Healthy lives must make mistakes. And there's nothing dishonorable about mistakes, if we make them from honest motives and learn a lesson from them.

The greater the human being, the greater chances he'll take, the harder feats he'll attempt—and the bigger blunders he'll make. But—

We needn't make the same mistake over and over.

Make mistakes—but make progressive ones. Make wider, higher efforts and experiments—make nobler mistakes. Life grows by its widening efforts, by its widening mistakes and the wisdom that comes from mistakes.

Once a great poet put this truth into immortal lines. He wrote of the Nautilus, that strange sea creature, whose shell, with its widening chambers of fragile pearl, is found on Mediterranean beaches. The poet studied that shell—thought of the life that had gone on secretly within it, building cell upon cell, in widening loveliness. Then he thought of his own life, building slowly, secretly and he cried:

"Build thee more stately mansions, O my soul,
As the swift seasons fall!
Leave thy low-vaulted past!
Let each new temple, nobler than the last,
Shut thee from heaven with a dome more vast,
Till thou at length art free,
Leaving thine outgrown shell on life's unresting sea."

Live! Live and dare to take chances, even if each new chance gets you in wrong. Have the courage to get in wrong. Be willing to pay for wisdom by getting in wrong. Then build on that wisdom. Take another chance—make another mistake, a nobler mistake. Build a "new temple, nobler than the last"—and so go on—and on—no matter what it costs, go on!

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

The Poet

The poet suffers
Pangs few men know,
For him the Stygian,
Abysmal woe
Beyond his brothers
When life is marred,
He knows the blackness
Of night unstarred.

Yet, although destined,
Misunderstood
To taste the hemlock
Of each dark mood,
Still he is dowered
Above the rest
With one rare jewel
Clasped to his breast

Talisman priceless,
He can forget
All Earth's injustice,
Falsehood, regret,
He can let pass all
Sorrow and wrong
Since he possesses
Magic of song.

Text for Today

Blessed is the man that endureth temptation: for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love him.—James, 1:12.

Stalin, Powerful Russian

Human Nature, Millions of Years Old, Is More Powerful.

STALIN, POWERFUL RUSSIAN LEADER.

Stalin, autocrat of Russia, ceaselessly interesting, tells his followers that they must do the work of 50 years in 10 years and they "must acquire technical knowledge or perish in a world that is hostile to them."

RUSSIA will not perish, and the Russian people will not perish, although the theories in which Stalin now thinks he believes, may and probably will perish.

No man has ever succeeded in inventing a new kind of human nature or human race, and no one can permanently run human beings on a theoretical plan.

It is as impossible as creating a new language.

Men are controlled, not by the doctrines of Karl Marx or the power of Stalin, but by three primitive instincts—SELF-PROTECTION, LOVE OF FAMILY and AMBITION.

They want to live in THEIR own way. They want to control their OWN families.

They want to get ahead in the world, acquire property and have the right to its peaceable possession.

You cannot eradicate from human beings, Russians or others, the instincts that have controlled them for more than a million years.

Stalin undoubtedly is an executive genius possessed of terrific will power.

The Russian people, as a whole, are enthusiastically with him. In Stalin's desperate effort to change Russia from an agricultural, Asiatic people to a modern industrial race of the western type in 10 years, wonderful things may be done. And our industrialists in America may be taught something they don't yet know.

But in the long run, Russians, like others, will go back to a system based on individual ambition and its achievements.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—Last evening I met an actor and actress who are teamed up in a smutty blackout in a revue. It is a skit portraying a libidinous undressing scene in a bedroom with off color comment that would gag a self-respecting buzzard. Yet in the protective coloring of a cafe they were different.

Nor do I believe they were "acting." He addressed her formally and in strictly drawing room manner. Their conversation was that of two clean minded persons over coffee cups. It was such a disillusionment I later questioned the actor.

He said: "She is a lady who is unfortunately cast in a vulgar part. It is no more a phase of her than jazz would be in a cathedral. You may have noticed she smokes cigaret after cigaret in our sketch. They were cubebs. She does not even use tobacco."

This on and off demeanor of stage folk is a phenomenon difficult to grasp. Yet it does exist. As a press agent for Ziegfeld, three ladies, appearing nightly and scantily draped in tableau vivants, were asked to appear in a stockingless episode in Central Park.

All stormily refused. On the stage they regarded semi-nudity as art. But off stage a mere gesture for tabloid exploitation—something cheaply vulgar. And no amount of persuasion could induce them otherwise.

Earl Carroll tells me that in many instances ladies of his ensemble who did not hesitate a second to appear skimpily garbed in the spotlight were off stage the most modest and best behaved in the company. They blush easily and otherwise show a naivete.

On the other hand, many hard-boiled actresses are cast for softly feminine roles. In these parts their cultural attenuations are superbly drawn. Yet off stage they gulp gin raw, swear like stevedores and otherwise add to the oddly depressing merriment of night clubs.

A wealthy New Yorker with a big estate on coastal South Carolina has a number of coal black employes, reared in the section. Excellent servants, they are paid wages of 30 years ago. Recently dissension developed. News of successful brothers and sisters up North reached them. On his last visit the owner heard they were to quit. He knew one aged servant eavesdropped. So in the living room after dinner he winked at a guest and observed: "I see by New York papers 80,000 Negroes are homeless in the city and that 40,000 slept in the snow last night in Central Park." No more rumbles from the servant quarters!

* * *

From an evening paper: "When he entered his office he seemed perturbed. He frowned several times and pushed a paper off his desk with a rustle. When his secretary arrived, he only half smiled."

Get a guy like that really mad and he'll pish tush you:

* * *

Those who used to sneak up back alleys and crawl through coal holes to land the newspaper scoop look back on our exploits with a foolish grin. On Park Row today the "scoop" or "beat" receives little notice. Instead of fighting each other, newspapermen learned that in unity is strength and in this show sense. A "scoop" was rarely known outside newspaper circles anyway.

* * *

The "scoop" caused the greatest personal embarrassment I ever knew. The home paper carried the headline: "Local Boy Off For Big Newspaper Post." The post was a $12 a week cub-reportership. Three weeks later I was home again picking my teeth in front of the Park Central and hoping something would turn up in the way of employment.

* * *

I still think scoopin' me was shabby. With a reporter on the opposition paper I was to watch the home of a banker suspected of huge defalcation. He lived in a lonely suburb. Long after midnight with everything quiet I slipped off to a depot short order restaurant for a sandwich. Before going back to the job I telephoned my editor: "Everything O. K. out here." He replied: "Fine. But you overlooked one minor detail. Your banker committed suicide 20 minutes ago."
